Australia Prepares For New Air Raids

Darwin Expects New Air Raids By Japanese

Third Air Raid Alarm Is Sounded But No Attack Is Made

COUNT DAMAGE IN THURSDAY'S RAIDS

Believe Some Of Planes In Attacks Came From Jap Aircraft Carrier

By LOUIS LECK
International News Service Staff Correspondent

SYDNEY, Australia, Feb. 20.—Darwin experienced a new air raid alarm today after suffering two previous bombing attacks, but no new Japanese air assault on the strategic northern Australian base developed.

A communique announcing the air raid alarm was issued following an earlier announcement by Air Minister Arthur S. Drakeford that Port Darwin had been raided this morning for the third time. Drakeford's announcement, made at Canberra, later turned out to be erroneous.

Meanwhile, defenses at Darwin were on the alert in the belief that the Japanese would soon launch another series of air raids to follow up yesterday's two assaults, which admittedly caused a certain amount of damage and a few casualties.

Land On Timor

At Canberra Health Minister Collins said 2,000 women and children had been evacuated from Darwin before the Jap raids began and that only 80 women, mostly nurses, were left there.

Collins added there was no shortage of food at Darwin. He said telegraphic service had been interrupted but that an emergency station had been established some distance outside Drawin.

The Melbourne Herald estimated 50 tons of bombs have been dropped on Darwin so far.

(BULLETIN)
(International News Service)

MOSCOW, Feb. 20.—Fighting raged with unabated violence on the northwestern Russian front today as the Nazis counter-attacked—heavily supported by tanks—only to be repelled by Red army blows.

The Moscow radio said the enemy was constantly being rolled back to the west under the thunderous Soviet offensive.

Late dispatches from the front reported the Russian recapture of Kresty, 65 miles northwest of Smolensk, in a further extension of the northern arm of the Soviet pincers that is gradually closing around the Nazi base at Smolensk.

Closing Around Smolensk

The Moscow radio said reoccupation of Kresty means the two prongs of the Russian drive north and south of Smolensk are now only 150 miles apart. Huge German units are gradually being squeezed in this vast but narrowing Russian trap.

Other reports said Nazi losses on all fronts were extremely heavy in the past 24 hours.

Senate Votes For Pension Repeal

Speedy Action Of Similar Nature Is Seen In House At Capitol

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—Speedy house action to repeal congressional pensions was foreseen today following the overwhelming senate vote of 75 to 5 to revoke a proposal which aroused nationwide clamor.

The senate attached the Byrd amendment for repeal as a "rider" to a bill to continue pay and allowances of missing and captured American soldiers, sailors and marines, and sent the bill to the house.

House leaders hoped to bring the issue to a vote today or Monday and thus relieve congress of what leaders frankly describe as an embarrassing situation.

The senate, after killing pensions for congress, rejected an amendment of Sen. Downey (D) Calif., to pay a $30 outright federal pension to all needy persons aged 60 or over which could be increased by pension grants of states.

Prolonged Debate

The combined proposals embroiled the senate in prolonged debate. While the Downey plan was rejected by a vote of 49 to 22, leaders promised that the finance committee will consider social security revision and increased pensions later in the session.

The senate also attached an amendment offered by Sen. Clark

International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Feb. 20.—Streamlining his war cabinet to a body of seven men, Prime Minister Winston Churchill yielded today to the clamor of criticism against his government and its conduct of the war.

On the whole the press received the changes enthusiastically, although the London Daily Express pointed out that Churchill "has not gone all the way that his critics demanded." But the Express added:

"He has met them squarely and given them a fair deal."

Churchill remained at the helm in the combined posts of prime minister and minister of defense. But sweeping changes nevertheless were carried out.

Assert Japan Forced German Sub Campaign

(International News Service)

LONDON, Feb. 20.—According to a story in the London Evening Standard today, the German submarine offensive in the Atlantic was initiated in response to Japanese demands that Germany move at once to immobilize the United States fleet in the Atlantic.

Indicating that Tokyo at present is calling the shots in the Axis war against the United Nations, the paper declared that Hitler met this demand promptly.

The result has been an intensification of pressure on both the American and British fleets, and no reinforcements have been available to send to the Pacific, it was stated.

RANGOON, Feb. 20.—Heavy fighting raged today on the Bilin river front guarding Burma's captial city of Rangoon as British forces sought to drive out Japanese units landing on the river's west bank.

(A British broadcast heard by NBC said two new Japanese divisions have arrived on the Burma front.)

A communique admitted that Japanese had gained a temporary foothold in one sector on the west bank, but added that a fierce counter-attack had thwarted this attempt at a flanking movement.

Informed quarters indicated that the Japanese had crossed the river at several points and at one place are within 45 miles of Pegu, located on the Rangoon-Lashio link of the famed Burma supply route to China.

Merchant Vessel Shelled And Sunk Off Atlantic Coast—Survivors Landed

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—The Olinda, a Brazilian merchant vessel has been shelled and sunk by an enemy submarine off the Atlantic coast, the Navy Department disclosed today.

Survivors of the attack have been landed in Norfolk, Va.

The Olinda is the 30th ship known to have been attacked in enemy action off the eastern seaboard of the United States and Canada in recent weeks.

The Navy Department, except to announce that the vessel was "shelled and sunk by an enemy submarine," did not disclose further details.

The Olinda is the second ship from neutral Brazil to be victimized by predatory U-boats. The Buarque, a 5,000-ton freight and passenger boat, was torpedoed by a submersible early last Sunday with the loss of at least one life.

County Cuts Tax Rate One Mill

FOUR MILL RATE PREVAILED IN '41

Cutting another half mill from the tentative tax levy for 1942, the county commissioners today announced the levy for the year would be three mills, a full mill reduction from the 1941 rate of 4 mills.

Of the three mills, two and a half are for general purposes and one half for institution purposes. This is a one half mill reduction from each of the funds.

The new levy will be the lowest in the history of the county at least since the turn of the century. It marks another successive year the levy has been reduced by the county commissioners, the sixth in line.

Speaking for himself and his colleagues, George R. Bolinger and Joseph F. Travers, Commissioner William R. Walton, president of the board said "it is our opinion that improvements which we had contemplated for the year will be impossible of accomplishment, due to priorities. In addition we believe the taxpayers have other tax burdens due to the war and we are cutting our levy as low as we deem it advisable, considering efficiency."

Tax duplicate cards will be made out shortly and the cards will be mailed to taxpayers within the next six weeks or two months it is thought.

Evacuation Of Alien Japs Is Big Problem

(International News Service)

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 20.—Mass evacuation of alien Japanese from coastal areas of the Pacific coast was becoming a serious problem today, particularly in California, and was causing a furore in other western states.

In central California, agriculturists in the rich Tulare county farming areas rose up in arms when throngs of Japanese farmers and fishermen moved in on the local Japanese colonies and apparently prepared to settle down there.

In the community of Orosi, the citizens held a mass meeting and demanded that the newly arrived aliens be prohibited from that area on grounds of public safety.

They hinted possible violence and demanded that protection be provided immediately for "the public safety and for their own (the aliens') safety."

Representatives of the county, including District Attorney Walter Haight, said they were prepared to go to San Francisco tomorrow and present their grievances to the Report Fire Bombs Are Dropped In Philippines

By JOSEPH A. BORS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—Japanese planes today were reported dropping incendiary bombs on Gen. Douglas MacArthur's installations on Bataan peninsula apparently in an effort to wipe out the defenders' ammunition dumps and supplies.

The war department in a communique stated there was little activity on Bataan except for "positional" fighting between front line troops facing each other from fox holes and trenches.

The lull in general activity in the Philippines indicated that the Japanese still do not consider themselves in a position to attack MacArthur with full force despite their estimated 10-to-1 superiority in manpower.

Pennsy Official Probing Wreck

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 20.—Pennsylvania railroad officials today sought the cause of the derailment which piled up 21 cars of an eastbound freight at nearby Cheswick yesterday. Three crew members had a narrow brush with death and 600 feet of track were ripped up.

The fast-moving freight contained 39 cars of general merchandise and was en route from Chicago to Harrisburg. Despite the heavy track damage, wreck crews had traffic moving through Cheswick again within three hours after the accident.

G. M. Sixsmith, superintendent of the Conemaugh division, said only the fact that the engine remained upright after the derailment saved the lives of the crew.

President Prepares "Fireside Chat"

To Make Address Monday Night

Will Probably Dwell On Huge Tasks Presented For United States

ENTIRE WORLD IS U. S. BATTLEFRONT

By GEORGE DURNO
International News Service
Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—Elimination of public confusion resulting from history's most cataclysmic war will be undertaken by President Roosevelt Monday night when he goes on the air with another major "fireside chat."

As the address stood in its rough-draft stage today, it was understood Mr. Roosevelt hoped to make every military trainee, every factory worker, every housewife, every white-collar employee comprehend the enormity of the task ahead and the part each must play.

The president had forecast one important phase of the forthcoming radio talk when he admonished every citizen to brush up on his knowledge of world geography—a knowledge that makes easier the envisioning of a battle front which encircles the globe several times over. Radio listeners, it was suggested, might get ac learer picture of the all-enveloping war problem if they had a map of the world before them Monday night.

Hard To Grasp

Mr. Roosevelt, say his aides, is convinced that American citizens generally are aware that blood and sweat and toil and tears lie ahead, but he realizes that complexity of a war being fought simultaneously on every continent and in every ocean is hard for the non-military mind to grasp.

Because of a slight head cold and the consequent desire of Dr. Ross T. McIntire, his personal physician, to have Mr. Roosevelt avoid crowds, the White House announced that the president's customary Friday morning press conference had been cancelled. Secretary Stephen T. Early said that the president had no temperature and he will remain in his room "purely as a precautionary measure."

The president was preparing his momentous fireside chat much as a newspaper reporter might write a running story on some spectacular news event. Hour-by-hour developments in the Pacific, the middle east, the Caribbean, the Atlantic, Europe, the Mediterranean, Africa, the Indian Ocean will combine to determine the "lead"—or most important statement—which will be written at the last moment before delivery.

Without disclosing any military information to the enemy, it was expected the president would bring the war closer home to the worker in a plane factory, for instance, by noting that a very few more planes would have meant the difference between Axis victory and united nations defeat in any one of several widely scattered points where the issue already has been temporarily decided.

He will undertake to emphasize how far-flung the American battle line is today—to tell why American troops are simultaneously necessary in Iceland, in North Ireland, in Nova Scotia, in the Caribbean bases and the Panama Canal while others are urgently needed in Australia, the Dutch East Indies and China—and at the same time still more stand ready to protect coasts of North and South America.

As the rough draft of the Monday night address has progressed, it will be an inter-weaving of the individual problems of the 26 united nations into a composite whole upon which the strategy against Japan, Germany and Italy must be based.

the town of Velij, and only a few miles from the border of White Russia.

Kresty, it was added, is the farthest west point mentioned in any reports of Soviet advances in the White Russian sector.

Meanwhile, fighting was said to be continuing along the wide front from Leningrad to the Crimea.

(The Germans admitted fighting on a large scale, particularly around Leningrad, and claimed that Nazi dive-bombers drove back Russian troops.

(On the southern front, said the German communique, the Soviet forces attempted to find a weak spot in the Nazi line, but were halted by Silesian infantry.)

Russian Report

The official Moscow communique continued the recent Russian policy of reporting war successes in general terms, asserting, "our troops waged offensive operations and occupied several localities."

"In a number of sectors the enemy counter attacked but were repelled with great German losses," the communique continued. Only 8 Russian planes were lost while 16 German aircraft were shot down, the communique said.

Soviet successes were reported in detail by Leningrad and Moscow radio. Leningrad radio said more than 30 strong points held by the Nazis were destroyed, and 1,100 prisoners and considerable war materials captured.

Moscow radio told of fierce guerilla warfare being waged by "partisans" in small towns in the Bryansk sector of the central (Moscow) front. Red sharpshooters have held a number of towns in this area ever since the Germans captured that town last summer.

One guerilla group in this area killed 50 Germans, and another during the last three months has destroyed more than 65 munitions trucks, nine tanks and one plane, it was said.

UNITED STATES IS PREPARING FOR BIG OFFENSIVE

fenders are being pounded unmercifully by Nipponese bombers and artillermy, but there is no evidence that they are to give up as the eleventh week of war draws to a close.

Jap Cargo Ship Sunk

Also in the Far East, U. S. submarines continue to track down enemy ships, a conclusion bolstered by a navy communique which disclosed that one of its undersea craft had sunk a 5,000-ton Japanese cargo ship in the China sea.

Army and navy forces at home, meanwhile, are pressing their search for Axis submarines following new enemy U-boats raids on shipping in the Dutch West Indies and at Trinidad, both in the Caribbean.

These rapidly changing developments provided official Washington with a World War II picture which, though gloomy, was highlighted by encouraging events.

The dramatic developments, both favorable and unfavorable to the nation, preceded and followed Stimson's announcement that the United States is mustering every resource for a full-scale offensive against the Axis powers as soon as possible.

Plan For Offensive

Because offensive action at the earliest possible moment is uppermost in the minds of American military and naval strategists, Stimson explained that the nation's forces cannot be diverted in adequate numbers to police all western hemisphere waters.

He warned that the nation must expect additional sporadic attacks on shipping on both coasts and in the Caribbean. He referred specifically to recent raids on shipping and the shelling of a refinery in the Dutch West Indies Islands of Aruba and Curacao.

Almost on the heels of Stimson's announcement attacks were reported on two ships at anchorage off Port of Spain, Trinidad, a vital British-American base guarding the approaches to the Panama Canal. The vessels were believed to have been the victims of Axis submarines. While Stimson declined to comment on progress of the Pacific conflict, there was every indication that much-needed plane reinforcements have begun to arrive in the beleaguered East Indies.

U. S. Planes In Action

In its night communique, the War Department disclosed that a formation of 16 American army P-40 pursuit planes had shot down five heavy Japanese bombers and one enemy fighter plane over the important Soerabaja naval base in Java.

It was the first time that so large a number of U. S. army pursuit planes have been reported in action in that war theater. Previous communiques reported a "few" P-40s in action, and never more than 12.

Just two days ago, the army disclosed that its pursuit planes had shot down four Jap fighter planes over Java and later bombed a Nipponese held airdrome in Sumatra. Flying fortress bombers also have been increasingly active in the southwest Pacific.

Official sources warned, however, against over-optimism because Japan still is conceded aerial superiority in the far Pacific.

The navy's report of another enemy ship being sunk by an American sub was the first action reported officially since February 3, when a U. S. mosquito fleet boat torpedoed a Jap warship in Manila Bay. American naval units still are cooperating, however, with Dutch forces.

MacArthur's Plight

In Washington, Secretary of Navy Knox assured the public that the navy is doing the "best we can" considering the fact that its vessels are scattered throughout the world.

Meanwhile, the plight of MacArthur's forces appeared more grave that at any time since the war began as the Japanese poured in more reinforcements, while enemy artillery and planes bombarded the defenders almost incessantly.

Recent concentration of artillery fire on Fort Frank, an American-held island nearest the Cavite shore, indicated that Japan hopes to silence the guns of the four defending forts one at a time.

Scope of the long-anticipated land attack upon MacArthur's forces was indicated by the disclosure that the invaders are bringing up every type of war weapon, including deadly flame throwers.

The flame throwers were discovered when American-Filipino forces captured a small stock of enemy equipment, apparently abandoned by Jap units which were forced to retreat.

A War Department spokesman said, however, there has been no indication from MacArthur that flame-throwers have been used so far in the Philippine conflict.

Just where the fleeing Japanese were going remained somewhat of a mystery throughout the west, however.

Colorado and New Mexico authorities have been outspoken in their opposition to any influx of Japanese, especially farm hands, while Idaho leaders have been lukewarm towards receiving them.

HEAVY FIGHTING IS IN PROGRESS ON BILIN RIVER

it was announced in a communique.

Heavy raids of bombing and fighting aircraft were conducted against the Japanese on the eastern bank of the Bilin, it was said.

(Tokyo claimed Jap troops have crossed the Bilin at several points despite fierce resistance, and in a push from the south seized the town of Bilin, located at the river's mouth.)

(Meantime, reports from Chungking said the Chinese armies which have been massing in North Burma have pushed across the Thailand border towards Chiengmai, in a move to relieve pressure on the embattled British defenders of Rangoon).

Informed quarters voiced the possibility that the British in the Bilin defense shield may retire slowly to the Sittang river, 30 miles to the west.

But it was not believed that this retreat would be made without bitter fighting along the present positions, for the Sittang runs perilously close to, sometimes within 10 miles of the Rangoon-Lashio railway.

Fierce Fighting

LONDON, Feb. 20.—Fierce fighting is raging on both sides of the Bilin river on the Burma front military authorities in London said today.

They declared the Burma battle has developed into a succession of attacks and counter-attacks in which each side is suffering heavy casualties.

The last word from the front, authorities said, indicated the main British Bilin river positions were intact.

But authorities warned that messages from the Burma war zone are subject to lengthy delays and there may have been some change in the situation since receipt of the last office dispatch.

It was emphasized that the Port of Rangoon has not been abandoned but that materials sent to China now will be routed via India instead of through Rangoon.

Discussing reports of Jap naval activity in the Bay of Bengal and possible activity in the Indian ocean, authorities pointed out the Japanese first would have to neutralize Colombo, Ceylon, which is an important naval base, before they could command the seas in that area.

REPORT FIRE BOMBS DROPPED IN PHILIPPINES

fighting continues on all sections of the front in Bataan. Enemy airplanes dropped a number of incendiary bombs on installations behind our lines.

"An examination of these bombs discloses that the Japanese are using white prosphorous as an incendiary filler.

"Gen. MacArthur, in behalf of his troops has acknowledged with appreciation the cordial greeting transmitted to him by 60,000 arsenal employes of the ordnance department of the army in the United States.

"There is nothing to report from other areas."

MacArthur in reporting the use of incendiaries, stated the enemy is employing white phosphorous. This was taken to mean that the Japanese are putting these bombs to double use. Phosphorous fires give off much more smoke than those set by thermite, the usual incendiary filler, and thus help set up a smoke screen.

Also, it was pointed out that phosphorous inflicts much worse burns when employed against troops.

(D) Mo., increasing base pay of enlisted men or warrant officers in the land, air or naval forces by 20 per cent for service outside the United States, or in the Philippine Islands, Hawaii or Midway Islands.

The same amendment, which also increased officers' pay 10 per cent for overseas service, is similar to the overseas pay of World War I.

Restore Confidence

The senate turned its back on congressional pensions, with some members defending the system but declaring that repeal must be voted to win back confidence of the nation.

Sen. Downey assailed congress for refusing to liberalize old-age pensions. Asserting his plan would not add more than $1,000,000,000 annually to social security cost, he said there are 1,000,000 needy persons between 60 and 65 who now are barred from pensions. Federal pension aid now begins at 65.

Sen. Barkley, Ky., Democratic leader, declared that the Downey plan would cost $1,800,000,000 to $4,000,000,000 annually.

"I ask the senate, regardless of politics, regardless of whether any of us return, not to place itself in a position where its sincerity and integrity will be questioned," Barkley said.

"We are in the midst of a great war. We have suffered reverses and more reverses are ahead of us. If we do not win this war, no pension law on the statute books will be worth the paper it is written on."

OPPOSITION DUTY

TO WHAT extent Clarence Budington Kelland, new publicity director of the Republican National Committee, speaks for the party as a whole is a matter that can be determined only as events develop, but certainly he was on solid ground when he declared in a speech in Indianapolis that the opposition has a grave and important duty in these critical times.

In all the wars in which this country has engaged, the Congressional opposition has done as much as the majority to force a mustering of the people's strength and a direction of their efforts with full regard for the lives at stake. The majority goes into war geared to the pace and compromises of peacetime politics. Usually it is dominated by men who find in public a ready employment of attributes which they discovered to unfit them for the rigorous demands of private competitive enterprise.

But war calls for strength and intelligence and the use of the best men regardless of personal friendship of political obligation. That is where the opposition comes in.

Congressman Abraham Lincoln exposing the weakness of the Mexican war effort was destined, as Civil War President, to feel the power of the opposition when he relied too much on politicians. The opposition was the soldier's friend in the Spanish war, the partisanship cost Wilson his Congress in the first World War.

Today the opposition is badly needed. The country would be better off if the opposition were stronger. Some one must handle those who learned so little from Pearl Harbor that they lost the Normandie. Some one must shake thousands from the public pay roll and block the politicians out of the way of the producers. That is the opposition's job.

ANOTHER KIND OF HERO

"Don't bother me; I'm too busy."

That's what an employe in one American factory said to a visitor who wanted to congratulate him on the record he had made for speedy and accurate work. He was too busy for pause—too busy helping to turn out the war material that our country so urgently needs.

Throughout America today there are plenty of others like him—men and women who with their work are helping the United Nations to make a gallant stand for liberty in every part of the world. Many of them have perfected new techniques that speed up war production. Many others have developed ways of saving vital materials, ways of using substitutes. All of them are giving their knowledge and their skill to Uncle Sam's main job of winning the war..

They don't often make the front pages, these people. Yet their work is one of the reasons behind the rapid increase in industry's output of war materials. Together with the men who plan our war production and manage our war plants, they are the heroes on America's factory front.

ENEMY QUESTION

Who are America's enemies? This is a question prompted by evidence that parts of the nation are beginning to indulge in the favorite American pastime of assigning preferential rankings to every one from enemies to debutantes.

In some circles there is quite a campaign going on to give the rating of No. 1 Enemy to Japan. Other groups think Hitler is entitled to the designation. This practice, harmless in itself, conceivably could lead to grave consequences should one view or the other ever assume a commanding position in the public consciousness. For such a diversion, if allowed to make any headway at all, could, in time, accomplish just the result that those who are fighting America most desire—internal division followed by discord.

There is nothing to be gained by saying that Hitler is a worse menace than Japan, or vice versa. That is the same as arguing that it is more reprehensible to murder a man by shooting him than by poisoning him. Just as the murderer, however he committed his crime, must be apprehended and punished, so the nation's enemies must be met and vanquished whether they are found in Europe or in the Orient.

To attempt to differentiate in degree of guilt between the races that have attacked America and spilled American blood must be not only fruitless but it also doesn't make sense.

SPEAKING OF SLOGANS

We liked, and pass along, the story about the fellow who, passing Red Cross headquarters, stuck his head inside the door and said to the knitting ladies:

"Remember Pearl Harbor and purl harder"

Then there is the Chinese restaurant proprietor in Toronto whose menu reads:

"Free French-Fried Potatoes."

And—although it's surely older than this war, the one about sentry who, hearing a footstep in the dark, cried: "Halt! Who's there?"

Came the answer: "An American."

Sentry: "Advance, American, and recite the second verse of "The Star Spangled Banner'."

"I don't know it."

Sentry: "Pass American!"

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

PUTTING BABIES TO BED

The child under 18 months of age who is accustomed to being put to bed by the clock, goes with pleasure. But as his creative imagination develops and his enjoyment of being with the family grows, going to bed may be unpleasant to him. Then he will contrive all sorts of means for lingering longer.

So to guide a developing child so he will experience no extreme unhappiness at bedtime or offer vigorous resistance is a marked achievement. It requires the very highest skill and resourcefulness. Yet some parents actually succeed at it.

The critical moment is when the child is reminded that it is bedtime. To avoid violent resistance then, shift his momentary resistance to cheerful cooperation.

Winning Cooperation

To win the child's cooperation requires abundant resources developed over weeks and months, in addition to perfect poise and self-control. Among these resources are having read to the child, conversed companionably with him, answered all his questions, encouraged his creation, enjoyed his imaginary yarns, shared in his improvised dramas, celebrated his successes and afforded him abundance of affection in a family atmosphere of security and love.

Many a parent who would try tonight to get a three-year-old youngster off to bed by riding him "piggyback" might not succeed. It might be necessary to pick up the child and carry him to bed. Even then, such resources as diverting him with the ride, might effect cooperation within a few minutes.

Diverting Attention

Once I saw a four-year-old boy being carried to bed against his violent objection. But on the way his mother began to talk excitedly about his shoe, untying it. Almost instantly he hastened to untie the other shoe and complete cooperation followed. That mother was completley calm during the whole procedure.

The parent with still fewer resources and less self-control might have to carry the resisting youngster to bed and let him cry it out. Even then, it is possible to build up these desirable resources for future successes. While being late is costly it is never too late to make amends.

My special bulletin on helping prevent and correct bedtime scenes may be had without cost by writing me at 235 East 45th street, New York City, inclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. Suppose the child from 2 to 10 strongly dislikes having the parents go away from home. Are they justified in slipping out after he has gone to sleep?

A. No. He should know beforehand if they are going away, though this fact need not be emphasized. For him to awaken, even with other company, and discover his parents have stolen away is a shock to him. He feels he has been deceived and deserted.

HAPPIGRAMS

Is it any wonder that no one has yet been able to explain Love, to describe it, to paint it, to sing it?

Elizabeth Heffern, 74, and John J. Geiger, 70, were married at the City Almshouse in Newark, N. J., in the presence of 150 other inmates. The bride blushed and the groom looked sheepish.

It was his fourth marriage, her second.

Everybody said it was strictly a case of love at first sight. Although men and women are segregated at the Almshouse, the two lovers had succeeded to pass notes, to have secret meetings on the grounds, to carry on their courtship, to propose and accept.

Three former wives, one former husband. Seventy and seventy-four. Yet, there was all the fervor, all the thrills, all the excitement of sweet sixteen.

HINTS AND DINTS

Sun sets tonight 6:40. Sun rises tomorrow 7:47.

There are many big affairs planned around dinner tables. There are also a lot of fights around the same places.

"Five," snapped the answer. "Me, the old man, kid, cow and cat."

"And the politics of your family?"

"Mixed. I'm a Republican, the old man's a Democrat, the kid's wet, the cow's dry and the cat's a Populist."

We heard a man say that every time he looked at a bird in his place he was loafing. He is wondering also what he does when he does not see him.

ANNOYING CONVERSATIONS AT THE THEATER

"So often at the theater and the movies people in the audience engage in conversation or make remarks about the plot, all of which is very annoying and distracting. Is it permissible for the one thus annoyed to request these talkers to be quiet?"—M. M.

Answer: Just as you are perfectly justified in asking the woman in front of you to remove her hat, you are justified in turning to the disturbers you mention and, in the tone of a plea rather than of a rebuke, say: "Please! We cannot hear!"

Especially during movie features, I am continually disturbed not only by whisperers and mumblers, but by the boisterous laughers and applauders and candy eaters who continue to cackle and clasp and rustle paper after the actors have resumed their lines and the unfoldment of the plot. Of course, stage actors pause in their dialogue until applause and laughter have ceased, but movie directors are unable to anticipate the extent of the laughter and applause that will greet any scene climax because no two audiences have the same reaction and such pauses would indeed appear foolish to apathetic audiences not stimulated to either laughter or applause.

Readers' Questions Answered

Question: My son has told me that his engagement will soon be announced. I have never met his fiance who lives too far away for a visit at this time. Will a letter suffice? If so, please give me an idea as to what I should say.—Fiance's Mother.

Answer: A letter will suffice for the present. Send it as soon as the engagement is announced. Here is a sample letter:

Dear Jean:

Bill has told me of your engagement. Although we have never met, I have heard so much about you that I feel that I know you well. We are all very much pleased and extend our warmest welcome into the family.

I am looking forward to meeting you. Can't you and your mother arrange to pay us a visit very soon.

With all good wishes for your happiness, I am.

Question: I am to be married at home in a street-length dress. Should I wear a hat? The clergyman who will perform the ceremony will come from a distant town by train. When my fiance gives him his fee, should it include traveling expenses?—Bride.

Answer: You might wear a "beanie" to match your dress. These are now very smart. Yes, give the clergyman his traveling expenses.

Henderson Talks In Terms Of Billions
Gives Sample Of Capital Conversation
Remark Recalls Speaker Reed's Ideas

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—Discussing national economics at one of his press conferences the other day, Price Administrator Leon Henderson seemed to a reporter, who happened to be present, to be rather vague with the figures he mentioned. "About" or "approximately" so-and-so-much was the way he expressed himself. The scribe asked if the administrator did not consider this a trifle indefinite.

"Why, yes, it is," agreed Leon, "but I'm speaking only roughly now, in terms of billions."

That's a fair sample of financial conversation in Washington at present. Inquire of an emergency official how much something's going to cost, and his reply's likely to be, "Oh, a few billions," which is considered reasonably exact.

Astronomers at the naval observatory, accustomed to reckoning distances, in light miles, between far-off suns and planets, tell me that it makes their brains reel to talk with up-to-date government arithmeticians, who calculate in near-infinities of dollars.

It's years since Uncle Sam's expenditures initially hit the $1,000,000,000 mark. Just one lone little billion. Thomas B. Reed was speaker of the house of representatives at the time. Many folk felt that $1,000,000,000 annually was a terrific amount for Uncle Samuel to be spending. Newspapermen asked Czar Reed if he didn't think so, too. "No," said Tom, who had a proper appreciation of the United States' enormously and rapidly increasing magnitude. "This is a $1,000,000,000 country."

His remark shocked a lot of people.

Close To Limit

Now our congressionally legalized maximum national debt limit, suggestive of the rate at which we've been spending during Czar Reed's era, is $65,000,000,000. According to Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau's latest report, however, we already are within a mere matter of $4,715,515,746 of 65 of 'em. Furthermore, I'm wondering if Henry's report didn't underestimate our outstanding obligations a trifle—if we're not a few cents farther in the hole than the $60,284,184,254 he refers to.

Anyway, he informs us, "In the not distant future I'll ask congress to boost the limit to $110,000,000,000, and then, perhaps, to remove it altogether."

What would Czar Reed say about $110,000,000,000 and subsequently making the sky the limit? We've a materially larger population to carry the load in 1942, and thereafter, than we had when he was the representatives' speaker. Nevertheless, there's quite a difference between the measly $1,000,000,000 that he indorsed and 110 of 'em, plus an unlimited number later. Would it make him gasp?—I'm asking.

Now, far be it from me to imply any doubt that the program outlined for us will work out otherwise than absolutely satisfactorily. I cite figures simply because I think they're interesting.

Secretary Morgenthau says the outlook's o. k.—that we'll come out of this war in far better shape than we did the last time. His thesis is that, if we win, we'll still have all our original wealth and resources left with us, whereas, if the United Nations lose, it won't make any difference whether we owe nothing at all or owe a trillion. The argument is that, supposing the totalitarians are victorious, they'll take whatever we've got away from us. It sounds logical.

Can't Break Even

All the same, a comparison—

The commerce department's record is that Americans' national income last year was close to $90,000,000,000.

It can't be much bigger than that next year. And our debt, as per Secretary Morgenthau, will be at least $20,000,000,000 more than that.

Personally, if I owed nearly 2.5 per cent more than my annual income amounts to, I wouldn't consider that my individual finances were on an especially gratifying basis.

That's something that Leon Henderson is stewing about—with all his price-fixing and anti-inflationary dope.

Henry Morgenthau is an optimistic chap. He's convinced, on general principles, that we'll come out of the war all right. Leon's hunch is that advance prevention's urgently necessary. He speaks casually in the language of approximate billions, but he reckeons with 'em down to a copper cent, or percentage, as an ultimate proposition.

Dinner Stories

Marcellus—Yo' is de fo'th gal Ah've took home dis week dat Ah've had a' argument wif.

Liza—But you' ain't had no argument wif me.

Marcellus—No, but we ain't home yit, neither.

Mrs. Peck—We have been married for 20 years today, Henry.

Henry (with a sigh)—Yes, for 20 years we have fought . . .

Mrs. Peck (scowling)—What?

Words Of Wisdom

There are two kinds of politeness; one says, "See how polite I am"; the other, "I would make you happy."—Tomlinson.

The World and the Mud Puddles

AFTER THIS—WHAT?

I heard a "machine gun" talk at a Rotary meeting recently. The speaker rattled out words instead of bullets and at the rate he spouted, he got in a full hour's talk in twenty-eight minutes.

I cannot remember all that he said, but I recall that there were several Edgar Guest poems scattered through the talk and also a visual exposition of plastic samples and a discourse on their place in the future. Here and there we heard of the tremendous possibilities that should emerge when this war is over and were urged to consider the silver lining behind the present dark clouds. He believed that research was the key to the future and remarked that it is lucky that some people have a flair for that stuff because if the world depended upon folks like most of us, we would still be living in grass huts.

I remember a couple of campaigns in the bygones when one of the orators mentioned that this nation "had to have a New Deal because there were more frontiers to explore." N-E-R-T-S. Science has advanced the frontiers of life and we are going to be a long time catching up with them, and that crack can be put in the same hole with the "grass will grow on the streets..." The world will always change.

As I have remarked on several occasions, I can find, search as I will, nothing that indicates that the people of this earth are ever going to enjoy a lasting peace. As long as humans inhabit the globe there is going to be war. We will finish this one, eventually, and the whole world will be exhausted for a considerable length of time; at least, until a new generation is born, and members of that generation become leaders, ambitious to rule the earth.

One Man's Opinion

A rumor factory with night club exposure and leaking tongues in every room has been discovered in Washington.

The seat of government is running off at the mouth.

The only solution is to put all government workers in the cabinet.

Cabinet members must now submit their well-rounded phrases to Arch MacLeish and nothing drips through that has not been checked against the federal cook book.

A cabinet member no longer is permitted to pull off a double-play bull unassisted

Our rumor factory is the largest in the world and pays no taxes on its sales of expanding yarns.

By contrast, the Chrysler Corporation paid almost 67 million dollars in taxes last year.

Laid end to end 67 million dollars would make a nice cross-continent yap-trap for bush league critics of big business.

THE STAY AT HOME

The glory goes to youth; the old must stay
At home and sweep and trim and tend the fire.
They had their triumphs in an earlier day,
Now from the struggle's peril they retire.

They are not asked to run the battle's length,
To face its fury and its hazards great.
These are reserved for youth's superber strength.
But they are asked to keep the faith and wait.

Theirs are the trying moments of suspense,
The long, still hours bf doubt and anxious care,
When comes no word to succor frightened sense.
And these with patience they are asked to bear.

Oh, stay-at-home, be brave and stout of will.
And trust your youth to conquer, soon or late.
Conceal your fears with courage and be still.
Head high, without complaining, watch and wait.

Tells Of Three Day Attack On Ship Convoy

(By Special Correspondent)

WITH THE MEDITERRANEAN FLEET, Feb. 20.—The recent three-day bomb and torpedo attack on a British convoy in the Mediterranean was one of the stiffest to date.

This correspondent witnessed the assault while sailing with a force of cruisers and destroyers escorting the merchant ships to Malta.

(Editor's Note: The British Admiralty announced yesterday that the convoy reached its destination—now revealed to be Malta—almost intact after a heavy sea and air battle that raged between February 13 and 16, during which time three Italian cruisers and a destroyer were hit. The British warships and merchantmen suffered no casualties to personnel. One British warship was superficially damaged. Two merchantment were damaged and had to be sunk by British forces. The rest of the convoyed ships reached their destination in safety.)

From the bridge of the flagship I saw warships hour after hour put up a terrific barrage which disconcerted the Axis airmen. No hits were scored.

At a pre-arranged point the merchant vessels were handed over to an escort from Malta. We brought back other merchant ships and reached our destination untouched.

Our small losses occurred while we were outside the range of British fighter protection.

Sailed on Friday, Feb. 13

Those among us who were superstitious noted that we had sailed on Friday, Feb. 13. They expected trouble. But apart from a submarine alert, the first six hours of the voyage was peaceful.

Then aircraft appeared, after which we were alternately shadowed and bombed.

The first bombs fell late in the afternoon. Two fell close to the flagship. Columns of water and smoke shot up as high as our masts. Gray-brown smoke puffs patterned the sky as the aircraft sheered off.

The next day the planes attacked at short intervals. Our gun crews fired thousands of shells. There was little respite for 12 hours.

Submarine alerts were accompanied by the "crump . . . crump . . ." of depth charges.

The bridge of the flagship quaked from the gunfire and the sky was plastered with shells. Bombs fell all around and the sea became an inferno of noise.

One merchant vessel was hit and veered away, belching smoke. The convoy sped on, leaving units behind to rescue 200 survivors and torpedo and sink the damaged ship.

The next day British fighters joined the convoy. Enemy planes attacked, but their bombs fell wide. Italian Savoias (bombers) launched their tin fish (torpedoes) and then hurriedly fled, pursued by our fighters.

Attack Testimony Refuted By Woman

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—Miss Hester C. Chamberlain, 40-year-old Washington rooming house operator, today told a district court jury that Orman W. Ewing, former Democratic national committeeman from Utah, could not have battered down a door and attacked a young girl in her house without her knowing it.

The state has demanded the death penalty for Ewing, accused of criminally attacking a 19-year-old government worker who lived in the rooming house which he and Miss Chamberlain owned. Earlier, the girl, a tiny blonde whose name has been kept secret, testified that Ewing had broken a lock chain on her door and attacked her last Oct. 26.

Ewing has denied the charges.

Miss Chamberlain, in testifying as the defense opened its case today, explained that she slept in a room next to the one occupied by the girl.

Defense Attorney Homer L. McCormick asked Miss Chamberlain if anyone could have forced the door of the young girl's room without her knowing it.

"It was impossible without my knowledge," the witness replied.

Don't worry. The law of balance is inevitable. We must pay for our follies, and then we'll pay the Japs for theirs.

AROUND CITY HALL

Six hundred and thirty-five persons were fined for some form of auto law offense during January according to a report made by Mayor Charles B. Mayne to city council. The offenses were listed as follows: Violating parking meters, 594; violating traffic rules, 39, and speeding, 2.

Judging from the arrests in connection with autos, traffic and meters consumed considerable of the time of day-time police.

Fifty-four arrests for liquor offenses were made and if accepted as a criterion, there is not so much drinking now as some time ago. Those who dispense intoxicants say there has been a decrease. Many persons who formerly had nothing but leisure on their hands now are gainfully employed and their time is taken up, hence they don't get much time to make the rounds.

The art of terpsichore helped the January revenue of the city. According to his honor's report, licenses cost $45. An annual license costs $15.00 and a one-day permit costs $1.00, for any organization sponsoring a dance. It has been some time, according to reports, since a "hoe-down" was held here.

Mercantile Appraiser and Tax Collector James Mayberry is busy plastering stickers on pin ball machines in various emporiums and, according to an estimate made to council, there are 100 in this city. A dispenser of pin ball machines some months ago estimated there were three times that many in this city. He was strongly in favor of a tax. Each pin ball is taxed $15.

Frank Hill, chairman of the Lawrence County Council of Defense, sounded a warning note to city officials to permit nothing to retard civilian defense. Director of Safety D. O. Davies is another such advocate. He wants protective measures available, even though they may never be necessary.

Messrs. Hill and Davies are correct in their attitude. There is no sense locking the barn door after the horse has been stolen. War is here. Lethargy should not be permitted. People realize that, with right supervision, a civil defense organization, without frills and "bunk," should be organized in the city immediately.

Gen. Edward Martin Urged For Governor

District G. O. P. Leaders Have Meeting At Washington On Thursday Night

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Pa., Feb. 20.—Called "Pennsylvania's man of destiny", General Edward Martin, of Washington, was being boomed today for the Republican gubernatorial nomination by district leaders from 17 western and southwestern Pennsylvania counties who attended a special dinner last night.

Judge Robert E. Burnside, of common pleas court, labeled Martin "the only logical candidate to direct Pennsylvania's war-time destiny." Rufus S. Marriner, newly elected president of the Lincoln Republican Club which sponsored the dinner meeting, called him the state's man of destiny.

General Martin, former commander of Pennsylvania's 28th Division, now stationed in Ohio in command of civilian defense for the Fifth Corps Area, was not present at the meeting.

Immediately after Judge Burnside's remarks urging the selection of the veteran military leader, the GOP chieftains withdrew for a private conference and shortly afterward, issued a statement announcing unanimous support of Martin.

"General Martin's practical experience as an administrator of civilian and military affairs makes him the ideal choice as Pennsylvania's soldier-governor," they said.

"General Martin is a man of high integrity, sound judgment and honorable fighting instinct, a keen interpreter of public sentiment," Judge Burnside said. "He has inscribed a lasting record of competency and achievement, both as a military authority and high state official.

"We need a soldier governor, a stateman of military attainment whose backlog of public service in peace and war stamps him for leadership in a crisis when a red-blooded far-seeing and experienced commander is needed most."

Pennsylvania has not had a soldier-governor since 1887 when General Beaver became chief executive of this Commonwealth.

Civilian defense should include guns. A suicide demolition force could land and do incalculable damage before being rounded up.

Two Dead From Food Poisoning

Five Others Found In Home Near Phillipsburg, N. J., Critically Ill

(International News Service)

PHILLIPSBURG, N. J., Feb. 20.—Neighbors Thursday broke into a bungalow at nearby Jutland and found two persons dead and five others in serious condition apparently as a result of food poisoning, police announced.

The dead were William De Rose, 46, and his daughter, Alice, 12. Taken to Phillipsburg hospital were Mrs. Louise De Rose, 30, William's wife; Catherine De Rose, 15, a daughter; Frank De Rose, 11, a son; Frank Cozzi, four, nephew, and Sebastino Elmo, 70, a boarder.

Mrs. Dorothy Hornbaker, a neighbor, became alarmed when she saw no signs of activity about the place, and called for help when she saw the bodies through the window. Hunterdon county authorities immediately began an investigation.

EAGER TO FIGHT AT 93.
(International News Service)

BOSTON, Feb. 20.—John E. Bronson, 93 year old veteran of the Civil war and one of the two living men who saw General Robert E. Lee surrender at Appomattox thinks his shooting "eye" is still pretty good. At his latest birthday celebration he said: "I would walk over there now as old as I am if you would promise me one good shot at Hitler."

force revealed that 14 persons were killed and 24 wounded in the first two Japanese air attacks on Port Darwin yesterday.

At least six of the attacking planes were shot down, the communique said, adding that some of the attacking planes probably were based on a Nipponese aircraft carrier.

Believe Carrier Used

"Some of the aircraft in Thursday's raids on Darwin are presumed to have come from an aircraft carrier," the communique said.

"At least six planes were shot down on Thursday.

"Several service (military) and civilian hospitals were bombed and machine gunned.

"Several ships were hit and wharves and buildings were damaged.

"The second raid was directed mainly against RAF installations. Buildings and airdromes were bombed and machine gunned but damage was not serious. Some Australian aircraft were damaged on the ground.

"Altogether 14 persons were killed and 24 wounded."

The communique also revealed that 21 bombers participated in the second raid but were not accompanied by fighters.

Commenting on the Darwin raids, the Melbourne Sun said the news of the attacks will surprise only those who have clung to belief that what happened in other countries could not happen in Australia.

Australia's Front Door

The paper said Darwin is Australia's front door and that authorities have assumed it would be attacked sooner or later, and have made defensive preparations accordingly.

It added the Japanese adopted the same tactics they used at Pearl Harbor and warned:

"The attack on Darwin must be regarded as the forerunner of others. The war definitely has reached Australia.

"We must emulate the enemy and strike back."

Meanwhile, sweeping and drastic regulations have given full effect to the government's decision to mobilize all national and personal resources in Australia for the war effort.

Total mobilization regulations have given the Curtin regime wider powers than any previous Australian government ever had.

The regulations empower Prime Minister John Curtin to direct any person or persons, individually, collectively or sectionally, to perform any service or duties in relation to his trade, business, calling or profession or to place his property in accordance with any order he may receive.

JAPS ATTEMPT LANDING UPON ISLAND OF BALI

force units, slashed out at the invaders off the palm-fringed Bali coast.

Direct hits were made with lighter bombs on a cruiser and a transport.

It was not known immediately whether any enemy troops had succeeded in landing on Bali. An official communique said that all "vital" points on the island have been destroyed in pursuance of the Dutch "scorched earth" policy.

Japs Lose 10 Planes

At the same time, official announcement was made through the official N.E.I. News Agency Aneta that the Japanese lost five bombers and five fighters to American and Dutch fighting planes in their raids on the great naval base at Surabaya yesterday and Wednesday.

All United Nations aircraft sent out from embattled Batavia to stave off the attempted invasion of Bali returned safely, it was announced.

Well-informed circles in Batavia said that the presence of Japanese warships and transports off Bali foreshadowed an attempt to invade the Island of Java from the eastern end. Bali lies just east of the eastern tip of Java and about 200 miles from Surabaya.

Earlier, announcement was made that the enemy had sent 12 bombers and 20 fighters to raid Bandung, identified by Aneta as headquarters of the Netherlands East Indies army.

The report said that "some damage" was done by the raiders.

Dutch fighters ascended immediately to battle the attackers and one Japanese bomber probably was shot down.

One Dutch fighter was lost and the pilot was killed. Another fighter was shot down but the pilot saved himself by parachuting to earth.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Official Dutch communiques are always accurate. In contrast, the Japanese high command said that in the Bandung raid 19 American and Dutch planes were shot down. The enemy communique, issued for home consumption and comfort, said: "Japanese air activity over Java resulted in 46 enemy aircraft being shot down or destroyed on the ground. Two Japanese planes failed to return.")

Meanwhile, said Aneta, it was learned that in Wednesday's attack on Surabaya, the great Netherlands East Indies naval base, eight Japanese bombers and one fighter were shot down.

One United Nations fighter was lost but the pilot bailed out successfully.

U. S. Forces Arrive

The attack on Bandung followed revelation that American land and air forces in undisclosed numbers have arrived in the Netherlands East Indies to participate in defense of Java. It coincided with fierce fighting on the Island of Sumatra, where United Nations forces are battling to block the Jap pincers drive against Java.

The method by which the Dutch destroyed the oil installations around Palembang in southern Sumatra, a method involving the placing of incendiary bombs a year and a half ago, has just been revealed in detail.

An Indonesian refugee arriving from the self-destroyed oil center said that a year and a half ago incendiary bombs had been planted at 22 places among the oil tanks just for this emergency.

These bombs were connected by electric wires with two main and one emergency detonation points, according to Aneta.

When Singapore fell and it became obvious that Palembang was next on the Japanese itinerary, the plans prepared long before were carried out. The destruction order was given and previously designated squads set out for the oil refinery.

One squad smashed everything that could be thus destroyed. Another squad emptied the boilers and kindled fires under them, ruining them. Another group set the turbines running and then threw sand into them.

CHANGES MADE IN HIS CABINET BY CHURCHILL

to Russia, and Capt. Oliver Lyttelton, war supply expert, who has been stationed in the Middle Eeast, were appointed to key posts.

Lord Beaverbrook will go to the United States as British representative to work on the United Nations' project of pooling their resources in the war against the Axis powers.

The London Daily Herald said that "not much has been conceded to advocates of a cabinet whose members, except as co-ordinators, would be entirely free from day-to-day work in their departments, nor has Churchill consented to lighten his own load by delegating tasks to the ministery of defense."

The London News Chronicle commented that the prime minister "has chosen the democratic method of solving the problem that confronted him and he is stronger today than yesterday by reason of it." But it added that the cabinet "still retains serious defects in organization" and that it "introduces new men but not as yet new methods."

Changes Made

Cripps was given the post of lord privy seal and government leader in the House of Commons, Lyttelton was made minister of state, taking over the war production duties of Lord Beavebrook, whose resignation was tendered because of his health.

Another important change was the designation of Clement Attlee, former lord privy seal, as dominions secretary and deputy prime minister. The war cabinet was reduced from nine to seven members. Sir Kingsley Wood, chancellor of the exchequer, and Arthur Greenwood, minister without portfolio, were dropped from the war cabinet but still retain their posts in the government.

The new seven-man war cabinet includes:

Winston Churchill, prime minister and minister of defense.

Sir John Anderson, lord president of the council (same post he previously held.)

Anthony Eden, minister of foreign affairs (same post he previously held).

Sir Stafford Cripps, lord privy seal and government leader in the House of Commons.

Clement Attlee, minister of dominion affairs and deputy premier. (He was formerly privy seal).

Capt. Oliver Lyttelton, minister of state.

Ernest Bevin, minister of labor and national service (same post he previously held).

Guns to shoot higher; then planes to fly higher; then guns to shoot higher. And no protection against planes that dart in at fifty feet.

Let's not kid ourselves. When our side wins, Russia will have Europe—and, then we'll stay armed to check Communism.

Nazi Long Range Weather Forecasting Factor In War Plans

By CAPTAIN JOHN H. CRAIGE
U. S. Marine Corps, Retired.
Written Especially For International News Service.

An all-important factor that has thus far escaped attention in the flight of the Nazi battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisinau from Brest to Helgoland is the German long-range weather forecasting service, reputedly the most elaborate and efficient in the world.

All published accounts of the affair agree that the Nazi ships owe their escape through Britain's cordon of planes, ships and guns to the weather, and an important section of Germany's general staff has concentrated for more than twenty years on predicting weather conditions all over Europe and far out into the Atlantic.

When the German battleships emerged from the port of Brest, if indeed they came from Brest and not from some other camouflaged hang-out, they ran into weather made to order for an unobserved dash. The time must have been shortly after midnight of a moonless winter night. In addition to the darkness of the night, a thick, windless fog hung over the English Channel.

Ordinary Channel Weather

This is ordinary channel weather, as all experienced travelers know. But channel fogs have a way of lifting suddenly. If this had happened on the night the Scharnhorst and Gneisenau left Brest, the two big German ships and their fleet of escort vessels would have stuck out of the seascape like a sore thumb. Their discovery and destruction would then have been certain.

But the fog did not lift. Nazi reports record the fact that motors of British scouting planes were repeatedly heard on the fleeing ships. But it was not until an hour before noon that a Royal Air Force flyer caught the squadron in a patch of sunlit water and reported their presence to Britain's air and naval fighters.

By this time the German vessels were within about 400 miles of Helgoland. Scapa Flow, rendezous of the battleships of Britain's home fleet is nearly 600 miles from that Nazi fortress. It was obviously too late for British superdreadnaughts to cut between the speeding Nazi ships and their base.

Mist And Rain Aid

All through a running fight, stretching 300 miles, fog, mist and rain continued to favor the fleeing Germans, blanketing them from effective air attack and from torpedo raids by destroyers and British motor torpedo boats. About 4 o'clock the action was broken off in the pea-soup gloom of a foggy winter evening.

All this may have been just luck, but there is more than a possibility that science had something to do with it. Long-range weather predicting is generally regarded as a good deal of a gamble, but the Germans have spent much money and energy on setting up elaborate machinery for gathering information, and seem to place much reliance on the reports and forecasts obtained.

The German general staff has set up weather bureaus in occupied Norway and France, also in Italy and Greece.

Weather troopers also accompany Nazi forces in Russia. Wireless messages dealing with weather conditions have been picked up from U-boats far at sea, and United States forces recently surprised a German ship operating a weather station on the coast of Greenland.

Reports from such widely-separated sources are analyzed each day in Berlin and probable meteorological developments charted. Following the campaign in Poland in 1939, Berlin newspapers published the claim that it was this weather-forecasting service which enabled the Nazi staff to calculate that the autumn rains in eastern Europe would be light, and that Hitler's tanks could roll without interference from general mud.

Although the importance of the weather in war has been recognized for centuries, it was only during World War I that forecasting began to assume a scientific aspect. Both the allies and the central powers maintained elaborate meteorological departments in that struggle and the bootlegging of weather news became a highly organized branch of international espionage.

Statements and opinions herein are private to the writer and are not to be construed as reflecting the views of the navy department.

Auto Junk Yards Will Be Checked

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Feb. 20—A statewide inventory of automobile "graveyards" in communities of 150,000 population or more was begun today by W. P. A., Acting State W. P. A. Administrator O. K. Yeager announced.

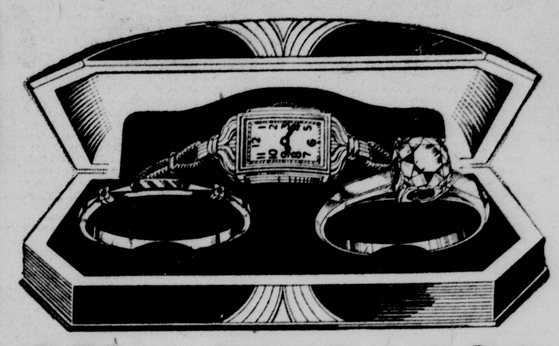

The survey, conducted in conjunction with the U S. Department of Agriculture, will list the graveyards, identifying owners or operators, the number of automobiles and trucks, and is expected to reduce the shortage of steel scrap.

Greatest Supply Problem Of Military History Surmounted By Allies

(Editor's note: "Yankee Ho!" That is the cry that is greeting the Yanks these days as they arrive in the Far Eastern theatre, ready for action. Details are revealed today by Merrill Mueller, International News Service correspondent, in the following garphic dispatch.)

By MERRILL MUELLER
International News Service
Staff Correspondent

SOMEWHERE IN THE FAR EAST, Feb. 19.—(By radio telephone to New York—Solving a military supply and transport problem which ranks as one of the most difficult and greatest in all history, the United Nations today are rapidly reinforcing five actual combat zones and four threatened areas in western Pacific territory.

And the Yanks, farthest removed, are nevertheless playing a strong part.

Australian forces, lately relieved from other commitments, are pouring into the Far Eastern defense zone, and they shout their welcome when husky American units move into their vicinity.

I've seen veterans of the war's greatest naval engagements flowing into the Far Eastern theatre to be greeted by the cry: "Yankee Ho!"—as they were safely and quietly convoyed into the battle zone aboard some of the world's crack liners.

Move Supplies In

Long lines of shepherded freighters—flying four or more flags—are slowly but steadily moving in with supplies that will mean eventual Allied victory.

The Dutch island of Java was like 1940 England in an oriental setting. The Dutch Javanese, seeing enemies succeeding on both flanks of their island home and expecting blitzes proportionately as bad as those in London, remained as sound and calm as the British.

But where England was rich with industries in the face of the enemy's assault, Java is rich only in duty.

America and England must quickly pour into Java enough guns, aircraft, tanks, ammunition and supplies to make it the bastion of the Pacific while preparing Australia as a base for counter-offensives.

The Javanese air force, in their United Nations planes, is a fast, hard hitting unit and as good as the R.A.F. boys who won the battle of Britain.

But they lack the Spitfires and radio-locators of the R.A.F.

History has been repeating itself on the island of Java, on the pattern of Britain. The home guard and army have taken their positions amid the palm trees, tropical flowers, mountains and swamps in direct proportion to those guards who face Hitler's legions across the cliffs of Dover.

The Dutch plan is to hold and delay the enemy. But help must come if the pressure on Java is to be relieved and counter-attack to be undertaken.

Vichy's Reply Is Not Satisfactory

U. S. Not Satisfied With Reply About Query On Libya Aid To Axis

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles declared Thursday that answers received from the Vichy government of France to this country's inquiries about French aid to the Axis in Libya were not regarded as satisfactory.

Welles said that because of this situation further instructions are being sent to U. S. Ambassador Admiral William V. Leahy at Vichy.

Welles declined to say what the instructions contained.

Asked by reporters whether conversations held with French ambassador Henry-Haye yesterday and on previous occasions covered the question of possible use by Japan of French naval and merchant ships in the Indo-China area, Welles said that he did not wish to go into all the details.

He asserted, however, that shipments of food and other goods to North Africa and everything dealing with that situation are being held in abeyancee.

In answer to further questions, Welles said he had no information leading him to suppose that Axis submarines had been given any assistance at the French West Indies isles of Martinique and Guadalupe.

February 28 Zero Hour For Enemy Aliens

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 20—Charles F. Uhl, U. S. attorney, today warned all enemy aliens that drastic action will be taken against those who fail to apply for certificates of identification by February 28.

Uhl revealed that only one-third of those required to register have complied with the government edict so far. He added that all enemy aliens who have failed to procure their certificates by the final date will be apprehended by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and placed in internment camps for the duration of the war.

CANINE LOALTY.

(International News Service)

ONTARIO, Ore., Feb. 20.—A heart-rending tale of canine loyalty was revealed recently by an eastern Oregon rancher. His English setter friend having been killed by an automobile on the Oregon Trail Highway, a nameless collie stood guard over the body for more than a week. Officers investigating the vigil returned the collie to its owner, a nearby rancher, but that night the collie was again missing, having returned to the dead dog's body.

Weapons Found In Mexican Raid

Mexican Secret Service Men Search Former Japanese Legation

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 20.—Mexican secret service men today confiscated 38 machine guns, 10 cases of rifles and scores of pistols found in a search of the former Japanese legation, and intended, according to police, for use in a "death or glory" stand against Mexican authorities.

Yoshaiki Miura, the former Japanese minister now en route to the United tSates for intermemnt at Hot Springs, had planned to use the weapons to resist deportation, police said.

Miura abandoned his plan when he was ordered by radio from Tokyo to obey the Mexican authorities, it was said. The Portuguese minister and charge d'affaires, Jose S. S Taverra, reported Miura's defiant attitude.

The entire staff of the Japanese legation has been sent with Miura to the U. S. internment site, and will cross the border at Nuevo Laredo, Mex., into Laredo, Tex., today.

May Delay New Tax Bill Plans

Committee May Hold Up Consideration Pending March Income Tax Reports

By GRIFFING BANCROFT
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—A move developed in the House ways and means committee today to delay work on the new $7,000,000,000 war tax bill until after March 15 "so we can see how income tax payments come in."

Theory behind the move is that members will have more data to guide them in their deliberations on future income levies if they wait until after collection date of present imposts.

On March 15 the already drastically increased income taxes fall due. One school of thought on the committee holds that collections may not come up to expectations because the people are not yet fully aware of the amount they are being called on to pay.

Another group, however, believes that owing to wartime prosperity, collections will be above anticipations.

In either event, many members say, figures on the March 15 returns will be of great value to the committee in determining the two major problems they must meet insofar as this type of levy is concerned:

1. How much more can personal income taxes be raised?

2. Should they be collected at the source through a withholding tax—i. e., deducted from payrolls—or can the present system of future collections be continued?

Corporation and excise taxes are slated for a general overhauling, and, although the Treasury so far has declined to recommend it, there is growing sentiment for a federal sales tax to raise part of the record program.

Ways and Means Committee Chairman Doughton (D) N. C., and Senator George (D) Ga., head of the Senate finance committee, at a conference last night received from Treasury and congressional tax experts a report on the progress they are making in working out a tax program to raise the $7,000,000,000 asked by President Roosevelt.

George said the two groups of experts were hopeful of getting together on all major points in order to speed action on the tax bill when it finally starts through the legislative mill.

Plan, he said, is to raise $3,000,000,000 a year of additional revenue from higher corporation taxes and $2,000,000,000 from increased individual income taxes and the remainder by "closing loopholes", hiking estate and gift taxes, and imposing new excise levies.

First Photos Of Axis Sub Raid On Aruba Island

Axis Sub-Crew Was Unnerved

Submerges Very Quickly After Shelling Attack Upon Aruba Yesterday

By RICHARD ARMSTRONG
International News Service Staff Correspondent

SAN NICHOLAS, Aruba, N. W. I., Feb. 20.—The crew of the Axis submarine which shelled Aruba yesterday were apparently unnerved for fear of U. S. bombers, observers of the bombardment reported today.

The submarine sent up flares to illuminate its target, the oil refineries of the island, said observers, but apparently submerged as soon as possible to avoid retaliatory air action.

The inaccuracy of the gunfire and the fact that the shells did not explode were cited by these witnesses as evidence that the gunfire was hasty.

Fears of the submarine crew were justified, since it was spotted almost immediately by a patrol plane and bombs were dropped in the vicinity.

Probably only three shells were fired by the submarine. Of these, the first crashed through the walls of a dormitory where 10 correspondents were sleeping.

The second shell struck a nearby building, entering the room of a sleeping oil worker, Berend Schelfhorst, and passing out through a wall to travel 78 feet beyond. There damaging the front of the vehicle. It did not, however, explode.

The third shell landed harmlessly on a beach.

Aruba was calm today despite the new attack and the tragedy Monday which claimed two dead and 49 missing, seamen aboard two tankers that were torpedoed and sunk.

Births Show Increase In U. S. During Year

By FRANK NEILL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—In tempo with the wartime industrial boom, the Census Bureau today reported that 2,500,000 births were reported in the United State during 1941—the largest figure in 20 years.

Only the all-time high reached in 1921—when 2,600,000 births were recorded following the return of the A. E. F. to civilian life—topped the latest figure, according to the Census Bureau. And the 1941 total exceeded 1940's by 2,360,000 reported births by more than 140,000.

The increase for 1941 was attributed to the fact that many of the 1921 "bundles from heaven" became parents themselves last year, officials said.

While the American stork was working overtime, his cousin in Germany suffered a depression. The Nazi birthrate has been in a steady decline since the outbreak of war, the Census Bureau revealed.

Marriage license clerks had one of their best years for several decades during 1941. More than 1,565,000 couples trekked toward the altar, to ring up the greatest tying of nuptial knots in the nation's history.

The marriage boom insures a continued high birthrate at least for 1942, even if large numbers of married men are inducted into the armed forces, the census bureau predicted.

The U. S. birth rate has climbed almost 15 per cent since 1933. Population experts disagree whether this rise is only temporary, or may foreshadow a new long time trend. Population data indicates that for the two centuries prior to 1933, the per capita birth rate in the United States fell steadily with only minor year-to-year fluctuations.

The census bureau estimated a total of 1,410,000 deaths during 1941. Births in 1941 exceed deaths by 1,090,000—a natural increase in population equivalent to a state the size of Oregon. The death rate was 10.6 for every 1,000 of the population, a decrease of .2 from the 1940 rate.

BRIGHT SIDE OF WAR
(International News Service)

SALEM, Ore.—One decided advantage of Aferica's present war was pointed out recently by Dr. J. C. Evans, Oregon State hospital superintendent, who stated that commitments to both the state penitentiary and state hospital have shown a sudden decrease. "Since the nation mobilized," Evans said, "most people are angry and are keeping busy working, so that it keeps them from becoming subject to severe mental strains."

COMMITTEES FOR CONFERENCE

One of the heaviest responsibilities for the Girl Reservee conference to be held here this week-end has been carried by the housing committee. Around 170 girl delegates and adult leaders are expected to attend this Tri-State conference and housing for a group of this size is no small task.

Gloom spread over the committee on Monday on account of the small number of accommodations that had been turned in, but many girls were working on the job who had not yet turned in their cards so that by Tuesday evening when a more complete check-up was available it was found that the girls had come through in true Girl Reserve style.

On this committee are Libby Dickey, chairman, Shirley Cartwright, Patricia Preston, Betty Brown, Mrs. J. E. Chambers, Mrs. Paul Butz and Mrs. Paris Shoaff.

The publicity committee has also been a dependable committee. Beginning with Thursday, February 12, they planned to run an article everyday in The New Castle News, they secured a window at the Pennsylvania Power and have made posters for it and the Y. W. C. A. The committee has planned for broadcasting and has made signs for the discussion groups that will be held on various phases of what Girl Reserves can do to help with defense. This committee includes Dorothy McCormick, chairman, Doris Johnson, Helen Bailey and Irene Milowsky.

JUNIOR BUSINESS GIRLS

Members of the Junior Business Girls held a benefit style show, Thursday evening, proceeds of which will be held in the charity fund.

Those on the committee included: Lois Brenneman, chairman; Donna Cook, Ruth Everhart, Jean McCready, and Emma Lou Weir.

Commentators for the event were: Mrs. Helen McCormick, and she was assisted by Mrs. Elsie Pilner and Mrs. Marge Klingensmith.

Other committees were: hospitality, Elizabeth Yingling, and Jean McCready; social, Thelma Whiting; music, Huida Book, pianist. Models included: Virginia Altman, Lois Brenneman, Virginia Cartwright, Donna Cook, Ruth Everhart, Lillian Hemming, Aleda Mae Montgomery, Carol Ransom, Helen Lou Singer and Dorothy Ward.

A delicious lunch was served by the social committee. On Thursday, February 26, the second chapter of the book, "Marriages Are Not Made In Heaven," will be reviewed at 9 o'clock, in the Rose Room of the Y. W. C. A.

CANDLELIGHT SERVICE

Girl Reserves from senior high school are participating in a candlelight ceremonial—part of the World Day of Prayer service this afternoon in First Christian church.

Reserves taking an active part in the service are Hazel Ziegler, chairman, Betty Jean Kemp, Norma Hamm, Mary Shaddick, from the Senior Ne-Ca-Hi club, and Lillian King, Caddie Wallace, Marjorie Pascoe and Charlene Black, from the Junior Ne-Ca-Hi club.

Social Security Board Dispute Has Been Halted

Governor James Accepts President's Suggestion For Halting State-Federal Dispute

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Feb. 20 — Gov. Arthur H. James today accepted President Roosevelt's suggestion for halting the dispute between his administration and the U. S. Social Security Board which threatened to deprive the state of $30,000,000 in annual federal grants.

Acting at his direction, Secretary of Public Assistance Howard L. Russell and Secretary of Labor and Industry Lewis G. Hines sent a telegram to the board assuring it that no civil service employes in their departments will be dismissed without a public hearing.

The action was foreshadowed by the Republican chief executive last Tuesday in his address to a joint session of the legislature, at which time he said he was capitulating to the board "under duress." The board has held up the use of federal funds for the administration of the $210,000,000 state unemployment compensation fund and the fortnightly $105,000 payroll of 1600 employes due Feb. 13 has not been paid.

As a result of the action taken by the governor and his cabinet officials it was regarded as certain that the payroll will now be released and that no action will be taken to shut off approximately $26,000,000 a year given the state for old age assistance and aid to dependent children and widows.

Meanwhile, in line with the president's suggestion, an attempt will be made to clarify the state's civil service law which permits the governor to discharge a civil service employe without a public hearing. When the state refused to issue a ruling to that effect, the Social Security Board halted further grants. Governor James then appealed to the president, who in turn suggested that Hines assure the board he would take no action, "pending clarification of your law," that would violate the civil service provisions of the social security act.

Two Members Of Murder, Inc. Die In Electric Chair

Executed At Sing Sing For Brutal Murder Of Police Informer

(International News Service)

OSSINING, N. Y., Feb. 20.—Frank (The Dasher) Abbandando, 32, and Harry (Happy Malone, 33, members of Murder, Inc., died in the electric chair at Sing Sing early today for the brutal slaying of George Rudnick, a police informer.

Abbandando entered the execution chamber at 12:01 a. m. EWT and was pronounced dead at 12:04. Malone was strapped in the chair at 12:06 a. m. and was dead at 12:10.

The pair had been twice tried, twice convicted and twice condemned to death for the murder of Rudnick on May 25, 1937, in a Brooklyn garage. Rudnick had been stabbed 54 times with an ice-pick.

Both men took advantage of prison custom to eat hearty meals before the execution.

Their execution brought to four the number of Brooklyn murder syndicate members sent to the electric chair by District Attorney William O'Dwyer. Harry (Pittsburgh Phil) Strauss and Martin (Buggy) Goldstein were electrocuted last year. Abe (Kid Twist) Reles, another Murder, Inc. gangster was killed in a plunge from a window of a Coney Island hotel last fall, while being held as a witness.

It was the first time in at least 26 years that a Sing Sing execution took place after midnight because the prison operates on Standard Time.

Register March 9-10 For Free Classes Here

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Feb. 20.—Men and women in New Castle and vicinity will be given a chance to enlist as "production soldiers" on the industrial front when the Carnegie Institute of Technology through Westminster college; and Pennsylvania State college hold their registration for free war industry training courses March 9 and 10 at New Castle, it was annuonced today.

Registration will be held at New Castle senior high school and classes will officially begin on March 12.

The courses to be offered free are part of the government's new program to train men and women in 150 cities and towns of Pennsylvania to fill vital jobs in the nation's rapidly expanding war industries. The program, officially designtaed as Engineering, Science, and Management Defense Training, is set up under the sponsorship of the United State Office of Education and is financed by the federal government.

The program is under the direction of Prof. Harold L. Back, chairman of the department of mathematics at Westminster college and L. C. Black, New Castle head of the Pennsylvania State college work.

In New Castle a total of 30 evening courses will be offered, and men and women desiring to enroll may obtain further information from the local United States Employment Service office or at the office of the superintendent of schools in the New Castle senior high school building.

Classes will be an average of 15 weeks in length and will be given two evenings a week, three hours on evening. The only cost to the students is a very small one for text materials and deposits.

New importance is being placed on the enrollment of women because a greater number of workers are entering the armed services and others are working increased hours and cannot attend special classes.

Attention is being given also to the problem of retraining non-defense workers faced with the problem of "priorities unemployment."

Courses to be offered at New Castle include applied engineering mechanics, applied mechanics, basic engineering science for office workers, ceramic engineering, corporation and manufacturing accounting, combustion of fuels, cost control, elements of radio communication, engineering drafting, factory planning and layout.

Foundations of engineering, fundamentals of electrical engineering, industrial chemistry, job analysis, machine design, metalurgical inspection, office management, ordnance inspection, operations inspection physical metallurgy control, surveying and mapping, time and motion study, and tool design.

Inaddition, on the Westminster campus at New Wilmington courses will be given in industrial chemistry and in surveying and mapping.

Seek To Place Blame For Wreck

Passenger Trains In Head-on Collision In Florida—Two Trainmen Killed

(International News Service)

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 20.—Investigators today sought to fix blame for the head-on collision of two passenger trains on the Seaboard Air Line Railroad, which resulted in the death of two trainmen and injuries to approximately two score persons.

The dead were A. J. Browning, engineer on the north bound Sun Queen, and P. A. Goode, fireman on the south bound Orange Blossom.

Of the two score injured, only 18 remained in the hospital today, three of whom were considered in a serious condition. They were Lesper W. Hayes, engineer of the Orange Blossom; Miss Vickie Malin of New York City, and William Billups, negro cook on the Orange Blossom, who was scalded by steam.

One investigation was launched by the railroad, under orders of President L. R. Powell of Norfolk and the other was being conducted by state authorities.

Everett J. Sullivan, fireman on the Sun Queen, said his train was traveling only 8 or 10 miles an hour, preparatory to entering a siding, when he saw the approaching train. He yelled a warning to his engineer, who set the emergency brakes, and then he leaped to safety. He said the Sun Queen apparently had come to a full stop before the crash.

timson Orders Army Changes

Reorganization Of Eighteen National Guard Divisions Is Directed

NFANTRY RESERVES CALLED INTO SERVICE

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—Moving to weld the American Army into the most effective fighting machine possible, Secretary of War Stimson today announced the reorganization of 18 National Guard divisions and simultaneously called up for next March 25 three divisions of organized infantry reserves.

The 18 National Guard divisions now in federal service will be shaped into "powerful, fast-striking triangular divisions," Stimson said.

The organized reserve divisions called into service are the 77th, 82nd and 90th—all famed for their records in World War I. An executive order authorizing the summons was signed by President Roosevelt Feb. 6. The 77th, mostly from New York City, will train at Ft. Jackson, S. C., under Maj. Gen. Robert I. Eichelberger.

The 82nd, known as the "All American Division" and composed of men from Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee, will go to Camp Claiborne, La., under Maj. Gen. Omar N. Bradley.

The 90th, called the "Alamo Division," will train at Camp Barkeley, Texas, under Maj. Gen. Henry Terrell Jr. Most of the men in this group are from Texas and Oklahoma.

The streamlining of the National Guard divisions will also be followed in the reorganization along triangular lines of a total of 27 divisions of the organized reserve.

Change Required

Reorganization from the old square to the triangular type division entails a change from two infantry brigades of two regiments each, a total of three regiments. The reorganization of this division from the square to the triangular organization, which was extensively tested and used during the Louisiana and North Carolina maneuvers last summer and fall is considered a natural and logical step toward welding the army into the most effective machine possible," Stimson said.

National Guard divisions and their home states affected by the order follow:

Twenty-sixth, Mass.; 27th, New York; 28th, Pa.; 29th, Md., Va., Pa., and District of Columbia; 30th, S. C., Ga., Tenn., and N. C.; 31st, Fla., Ala., Miss., and La.; 32nd, Mich., and Wis.; 33rd, Ill.; 34th, Ia., Minn., N. D. and S. D.; 35th, Neb., Kans., and Mo.; 36th, Tex.; 37th, Ohio; 38th, Ky., W. Va. and Ind.; 40th, Calif., and Utah; 41st, Wyo., Wash., Mont., Ore. and Ida.; 43rd, Conn., Me., Vt., and R. I.; 44th, N. J. and N. Y., and 45th, Colo., Ariz., Okla. and N. Mex.

At the same time, Secretary Stimson announced formation of the first Filipino infantry battalion in the U. S. Army to be stationed at Camp San Luis Obispo, Calif.

Personnel of the Filipino battalion will be comprised of natives who volunteer for induction and assignment to this unit Stimson said.

The secretary added that consideration also is being given to the organization of a similar battalion from citizens of the United Nations who now are in this country.

"Many such nationals desire to serve in the armed forces of this country against the common enemy who in many instances has already overrun their homelands," Stimson stated.

FBI To Conduct Police Course Here

Officers From This District To Attend School In Elks Club

Six day course of training in emergency police work will be conducted by the FBI during the week of February 23-28, on the third floor of the Elks club, this city, it was announced today by J. E. Thornton, special agent in charge of the Pittsburgh division of the FBI.

The six day course follows a two-day course for police executives held in Pittsburgh, in October.

The course of training will include a wide range of subjects.

On February 24, the police will be addressed by Major E. Lowry Humes, chairman of the Alien Enemy Hearing Board. He will discuss the present status of alien enemies.

The school will be attended by police officers in this section.

Retail trade in the United States totaled 53.6 billion dollars in 1941, an all-time high, the Department of Commerce reported.

General Gamelin Declines To Give Any Testimony

Says He Has Already Been Judged Guilty By Military Court

(International News Service)

VICHY, Feb. 20—General Marie Gustave Gamelin, commander of the French armies at the beginning of the war, declared Thursday at the opening of the Riom trials that he would not defend himself.

Stating that he had already been judged by a military court and found guilty, Gamelin said he was ready to do everything he could to assist the government, and would not increase further the misfortunes of France.

Also on trial are former Premiers Eduard Daladier and Leon Blum, former Air Minister Guy Lachambre and former Administrator of National Defense Industries Pierre Jacomet.

All are charged with responsibility for the fall of France, in addition to a number of other accusations. Most of the men have been imprisoned at the Pourtalet Fortress.

Gamelin's statement drew warm commendation in court as a number of statements were made that the fall of France came about through the democratic regime in power.

Former Premier Leon Blum, head of the popular front government, disputed this contention. He said the fall of France was solely the result of a military defeat. He added that Gamelin's decision made it difficult if not impossible to find out what really occurred.

Capping Exercises For Student Nurses

Will Take Place At New Castle School Of Nursing Sunday Afternoon, At 3 O'Clock

Twenty student nurses who entered the New Castle hospital school of nursing in September will be formally received into the school of nursing by the faculty, with capping exercises, to be held Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the nurses' home.

Relatives and friends of the student nurses and hospital personnel are invited to attend. The students will be received and capped by the director of nurses, Sister M. Aniceta.

The Rev. Fr. Francis McCarter, pastor of St. Mary's church, will deliver the main address. Mrs. R. F. Roberts, chairman of the School of Nursing Council, will extend greetings to the students. A program of vocal and musical numbers has been arranged for the afternoon.

At this period in the education of undergraduate nursing students, the requirements in academic studies and besides practice of the pre-clinic period have been completed. After the date of capping exercises, the students will enter into the second semester of their first year of studies and will be assigned to hospital departments for approximately five hours a day.

The students will receive a week of vacation following the capping exercises and then will resume their studies and practice at the school of nursing and hospital.

Local Republicans At Lincoln Dinner

Candidacy Of General Edward Martin Proposed In Washington, Pa.

Headed by Republican County Chairman Roger W. Rowland, a group of about 15 Lawrence county Republicans attended the dinner of the Washington County Lincoln Club in Washington, Pa., Thursday night. The dinner was attended by delegations from a dozen Western Pennsylvania counties.

The principal speaker of the evening was Attorney Peter Glick of Pittsburgh who spoke on Lincoln. Attorney James H. Duff also spoke.

During the course of the dinner the name of Major General Edward Martin was advanced as a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor. His name was presented by a resolution read by Judge Robert Burnside, formerly of New Wilmington.

At the present time General Martin is in the United States Army but has reached the age where he will be retired. If he can be released from the army in time it is possible that he will be a candidate.

City Assessor Offers Suggestion

John Cartwright, assessor for the city, today suggested that all absentee property-owners or their agents notify the assessor's office where to send triennial assessment notices, otherwise triennial assessment notices left with the tenant may not reach owners. As soon as weather conditions become better Assessor Cartwright will start doing field work. His assistant, Fred Brown, will also start field work as soon as he recovers from a fracture of an ankle.

NEW SPY STORY
(International News Service)

LONDON—An American officer serving in the Middle East vouches for this story: At Basra, one of the ports through which American materials are pouring into the Middle East arena daily, an Arab daily frequented the waterfront with a dancing bear on a chain. The bear danced so well it finally attracted suspicion. Investigation proved it to be an enemy agent in a bearskin.

A contract is largely a reminder. If a man's word isn't good, his contract can't be trusted, either.

If a man stands when his wife enters the room, it means there's another man present.

Duff Commends Workers In War Relief Campaign

Splendid Accomplishment Of All Divisions Proves Gratifying To Chairman

WILL SEND CHECK TO HEADQUARTERS

With the completion of the war fund campaign in the amount of $52,000, the quota allotted to the Lawrence county chapter by the American Red Cross, W. W. Duff, chairman of the committee, finds it difficult to give recognition to all those who so faithfully served on his committee.

Outstanding accomplishments were turned in by each division. The business area, under the leadership of George D. Reid and A. J. Genkinger, more than tripled the Roll Call. Industry under Clyde Whittaker, has reached an all time high in the history of the chapter and played a very important part in the successful campaign.

Harold McCulloch, chairman of the county, used with very few additions, the Roll Call personnel which had just completed the most successful of all Roll Calls. The Mahoning township district, under Mrs. E. Miller, leads all other townships but is very closely pressed by Big Beaver under the leadership of Harold Marshall and Mrs. G. Zieve and North Beaver township, which was covered by Miss Esther Landman in Bessemer area and Mrs. E. C. Wiggins and Mrs. H. E. Reed in the Mt. Jackson area. All of the townships played a very fine part in the final returns.

The transportation division under Harry Gormley, although a small division, was well represented by a complete coverage of all trucking industry. Andy Dodds, who has carried on successful Roll Calls in all of the governmental divisions of the city and county, had an exceptionally fine response from his division.

Mrs. Harold Leach, chairman of the residential division, found capable volunteers in each and every ward and has made no particular mention of any division because she feels each ward did a fine piece of work. Dr. Green, superintendent of schools of New Castle, rallied all teachers and students and turned in the largest sum thus far received from this division.

Coming into the office were the reports from the organizations and all unclassified contributions. The organizations throughout the entire county showed a deep interest in the success of the war fund campaign.

Mr. Duff wishes it to be a matter of chapter record that every person that served in any capacity be credited with an exceptionally fine piece of work. He points out in commenting on the war fund campaign that the ultimate successful end was reached through a fine publicity program under the leadership of Eugene Scanlon. Mr. Scanlon secured the cooperation of the New Castle News, who gave most generously of their space and WKST who gave of their time on the air. To William Dean, chairman of Ellwood City auxiliary, assisted by John Powell and Russell Schill, Mr. Duff points to that division as having completed a very successful campaign. "In the very near future, Norman E. Clark, treasurer of the chapter, will send in to the National Red Cross a check in the amount of over $40,000 which will be the total of the war fund less the 15 per cent which is retained by the Lawrence county chapter to carry on the program of the chapter made necessary by the war," stated Mr. Duff in conclusion.

REUNITED AFTER 75 YEARS

(International News Service)

RUTLAND, Vt.—A brother 90 years of age and a sister 88 years old were reunited here a few days ago after not having seen each other in over 75 years. Mrs. Angeline Lancor of this city and Harry Stebbins of Norwich, Conn., the principals, were brought together through the efforts of Stebbins' son, Harry, Jr.

Paraskiers Test Is Successful

First Test Of Parachute Ski Jumping By Army Men In Utah Success

(International News Service)

SOMEWHERE IN UTAH, Feb. 20. —Army authorities Thursday hailed as highly successful the first tests of parachute ski jumping to be made in the United States.

Five "paraskiers," two of them commissioned officers, yesterday afternoon plunged from a transport plane to a snowy plateau of the rugged Wasatch mountain range and sped toward an imaginary "combat area" on skis dropped from the ship a few minutes earlier.

To Capt. Arthur Gorham fell the task of making the highest deliberate altitude jump the army had ever undertaken. As the transport circles over 10,000-foot peaks, he leaped out of the plane and 'chuted within 100 yards of his skis, slipped them on and headed toward the "war" zone.

Army officials said it took Captain Gorham less than three minutes to swing into action after leaving the plane.

Twenty-One Industries Establish Pay Roll Allotment In Buying Bonds

SEVERAL PLANTS ARE 100 PER CENT

M. V. Hyde, deputy solicitor for Lawrence county in the promotion of the Pay Roll Allotment Plan of the Defense Savings Staff of the Treasury Department, reports that twenty-one industries in Lawrence county have now established this plan for their employes.

This means that employes may purchase defense bonds and have the money deducted systematically from their pay. The total number of employes who have subscribed to the plan is approximately 9,500.

Plants where the employes have subscribed to this plan 100 per cent for the purchase of bonds, are: New Castle Refractories, New Castle Lime and Stone Co., Shaw-Perkins Corporation, New Castle Water Co., Fisher Brothers, and Associated Box Corporation.

Canadian Corvette Sent To Bottom, Minister Reports

(International News Service)

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 20 — The Canadian Corvette Spikenard has been sunk by enemy action, Naval Minister Angus MacDonald announced today, adding that "all five officers and 52 of the 60 ratings are missing and must be considered lost."

"It is believed the ship was torpedoed by a German submarine while she was on convoy escort work in the North Atlantic," said MacDonald.

The Spikenard's captain, Lieut. Commander Hubert G. Shadforth, of Vancouver, was among the casualties. Four of the eight survivors, reported to be slightly wounded, are in hospital in England. Shadforth was particularly well known in the mercantile marine on Canada's west coast in peacetime.

None of the Spikenard's crew was a United States citizen.

Reports Flannel Nightshirts Are On Way Back

JOLIET, Ill., Feb. 20—Granddaughter has adopted Granddad's flannel nightshirt—with trimmings, according to the American Institute of Laundering. After noting an increasing number of the old-fashioned garments in recent bundles, laundry officials were perplexed to find that most of them sported embroidery on the hems. They asked themselves, "Is Grandpa going sissy?"

Then nightcaps and bootees began to accompany the nightshirts and the laundrymen realized that the wearers were young women indulging in the latest fad.

GRANGE COMMUNITY DAY

Farmers and their families are planning to attend the community day program next Wednesday at the grange hall, arranged by H. R. McCullough, county agent.

GRANGE LADIES' CLUB

The Big Beaver Grange Ladies' club met Tuesday afternoon February 17, with Mrs. Emma Miller presiding over the business meeting.

The hostesses for the day presented a Martha Washington luncheon from an attractively decorated tea table.

On March 17, members and their families will enjoy a dinner. Hostesses for the dinner will be Mrs. E. Howarth, Mrs. F. W. Jenkins, Mrs. Robert Jackson, Mrs. Charles Stewart, and Miss Dorothy McAnlis. Members of the music and dramatic committees will arrange the program for the evening.

HOME ECONOMICS GROUP

Attractive tablecloths and luncheon sets were made of oilcloth by members of the Home Economics group when they met at the McCullough home Monday afternoon.

"Greens and Salads" will be the topic of the February 26 meeting at the McHattie home at 1:30 with Miss Boneita Gordon in charge.

BIG BEAVER NOTES

Special Session In Recess Until Coming Week

By RAYMOND WILCOVE
International News Service
Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, Feb. 20. — The Democratic majority of the House may reject Gov. Arthur H. James' request for new wartime powers, but agree to consider the revision of specific acts affected by the national emergency, it was learned today.

Opposition seemed to be growing among Democratic assemblymen to the governor's request that the legislature delegate to the state defense council authority to suspend or modify existing laws that interfere with the war's prosecution.

Rep. Leo A. Achterman of Monroe, the House Democratic leader, said no decision had been reached yet on the majority party's attitude. This would have to wait caucus action, he said, but he pointed out that bills were being introduced in the House to carry out the governor's request for war-time suspension or modification of certain laws.

He cited as an example of this a bill introduced by Rep. J. Dean Polen (D) Washington, authorizing the secretary of revenue to suspend during the period of national emergency the operation of certain provisions of the vehicle code affecting school buses, when such provisions conflict with priority claims for material.

Meanwhile, the administration's "delegation-of-authority" bill remained in the Senate committee on state government, with no indication as to when it would be reported out for action. Sen. Oscar J. Tallman (R) Lehigh, committee chairman, explained that members wished to study the measure over the week-end.

Recess To Next Week

Both houses were in recess today until next week. The House adjourned until 3 p. m. Tuesday and the Senate utnil 4 p. m. Monday.

The first week of the special session saw these accomplishments: 1. The House passed the bi-partisan congressional reapportionment bill by a vote of 163-17 and forwarded it to the Senate where speedy passage was predicted; and 2. The Senate placed in position for passage next week administration measures carrying out four of the 17 subjects listed in the governor's call. The four bills strengthen sabotage prevention laws, provide for the expenses of the special session, cede land in Delaware county to the federal government, and authorize political sub-divisions to increase their taxes and borrow funds for defense expenditures.

A Democratic party measure liberalizing the unemployment compensation laws will be introduced in the House next week by Rep. Reuben E. Cohen (D) Philadelphia, who sponsored similar legislation at last year's regular session. The 1941 House and Senate were unable to agree on amendments, however, and no action was taken.

Two bills were introduced in the House by Rep. Presley N. Jones (D) Lawrence, making it a misdemeanor to commit a crime during an alert or blackout and regulating the retail sale of explosives during the war. The blackout bill provided penalties of $1,000 fine and five years imprisonment in addition to existing penalties for the crime committed, while the second measure would ban the sale of explosives to civilians unless they first obtain purchasing orders from local rationing boards.

Forty-five bills were introduced during the first week's sessions, 28 in the Senate and 17 in the House. Many failed to come within the scope of the government's call and have no chance of enactment.

Lincoln-Garfield Club In Reunion

Joseph W. Dukes Is Elected As President For Year—Program Enjoyed

Joseph W. Dukes was elected president of the Lincoln-Garfield club Thursday night when the club held its mid-winter reunion in the assembly room of the Eagles club on South Jefferson street. With him was elected Herb Samuels as vice president and Charles E. McGrath as secretary-treasurer.

The affair was typical of the mid-winter reunions. A lunch, a smoker, a lot of reminiscing and a few short speeches by members of the organization. Among those who spoke were Edward D. Pritchard, Charles E. McGrath, Art Howell of Ellwood City, T. Earl Dukes, John S. Love, Coy Cole, John Moore, David Nelson, James Dennis, Joseph W. Dukes, Herb Samuels and Tom Frank.

The retiring president, Tom Frank, thanked the organization for the support it had given him in the summer reunion, and asked for the same co-operation for the new officers in the coming year. He recalled the days when the men were youngsters in the Lincoln-Garfield school and mentioned some of the men who have gone on to business or political successes.

An air of informality and sociability always marks the wid-winter reunions and the one Thursday night was no different than the many others held in previous years. During the evening the plans for the summer reunion were discussed and committee meetings will be held in the coming months to perfect those plans.

War Outbreak Brings Boom To Tattoo Artists

(International News Service)

NEW ORLEANS.—Joe Simmons is one guy who works on the theory that beauty is only skin deep, but you can take his word for it—the war has caused a boom in his business.

Simmons is the self-titled world's champion tattoo artist, and he says his business in New Orleans has hit a peak recently as a result of demands for flags and other patriotic items from members of the army, navy and coastguard.

Customers pick their favorite designs from among 2,871 different tattoo works on Simmons body, and he gives them a likeness on their own anatomy. He looks upon his art and each of the designs on his own body as things of beauty, although they're only skin deep, and his favorite example is what he terms an oriental masterpiece, spread across his entire back.

Retonga Again Wins Heartfelt Praise For Relief Of Distress From Acid Indigestion, Sluggish Elimination, And Loss Of Strength. Louis Hallman Tells Experience.

One happy and grateful resident after another is telling of their wonderful relief through the noted medicine, Retonga. Among the latest is Mr. Louis A. Hallman, well known resident of St. Albans, W. Va., and an expert machinist at the government ordnance plant:

"Anybody who has suffered from acid indigestion, gas in the stomach, constipation, and nervousness like I have will know why I am so enthusiastic about Retonga," declares Mr. Hallman. "Even when I was hungry, which was seldom, I was afraid to eat because of heartburn and gas pains. Sometimes my stomach felt so miserable I could hardly bear for my clothes to touch me. Constipation kept me taking strong purgatives regularly, and I got to feeling so weak and nervous I was afraid I would soon have to give up my work.

"Retonga gave me such wonderful relief I now eat anything I want, my nerves are steady, and I sleep fine all night long. The way Retonga relieved my constipation seems almost marvelous. I feel better than in years. Retonga lived up to every good word I ever heard about it."

Hundreds of your neighbors and friends are praising this noted gastric tonic and Vitamin B-1 medicine Accept no substitute. Retonga may be obtained at Eckerd's & Pay Less Store.—Adv.

Western Hemisphere Could Produce Rubber To Meet All Demands

(Special To The News)

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Feb. 20—All the rubber we need can be produced eventually in the Western Hemisphere, if we can solve the labor problem in the rubber-growing regions, according to Dean Edward Steidle of the School of Mineral Industries at the Pennsylvania State College, who recently returned from a 22,000-mile air trip to the Latin Americas.

"Although it may take about 10 years to develop new rubber plantations to the production stage, our supply of rubber could be increased several hundred per cent from the many wild trees already growing in the Amazon valley, if local labor would co-operate," Dean Steidle said today.

He pointed out that Brazil will either have to furnish the labor or permit the United States to import it from such sources as Puerto Rico.

Although wild trees can aid the rubber shortage immediately, Dean Steidle explained that they would have to be supplemented by synthetic products made from oil or from guayule—a ground shrub grown in our Southwest and in Mexico. Development of these new sources takes time, he added, and therefore conservation of present supplies is imperative.

"'Irrespective of the outcome of the war, our natural rubber sources are in the Western Hemisphere," he said. "Our help in raising and buying rubber will do much to strengthen hemisphere solidarity and build permanent co-operation and friendship."

As a concrete example, Dean Steidle cited the city of Manaos in the Aamazon valley, which flourished in the peak days of 1910-11. The U. S. consul and the Chamber of Commerce there hope that we will help revive the rubber industry and bring prosperity back to the valley.

Although Henry Ford's first experiment, begun 10 years ago in the Amazon region, failed because of poor location, labor problems, and inexperience, his second experiment, begun four years ago, gives every indication of success, Dean Steidle observed. The new location, with better soil and the right amount of sunshine and moisture, is growing rubber trees that are good producers and relatively immune to a destructive fungus called South American leaf disease."

It is reported that Ford's new plantation can produce 38,000 tons of raw rubber a year, providing Brazil will co-operate on the labor problem," Dean Steidle said. "The U. S. Department of Agriculture and many automobile and tire companies are watching the experiment with interest. Results should be known in two years."

Such experiments point the way to hemisphere interdependence in rubber, and to new plantations in at least 14 Central and South American countries besides Brazil, he said.

MRS. RENEKER GUEST SPEAKER

Friday, Feb. 13, proved a very delightful day for members of the Domestic Science club, when they were entertained at the home of Mrs. Ross Wallace and heard Mrs. Walter Reneker, of New Castle, tell of her recent trip to Mexico. An appetizing repast was served by the hostess.

At the business period it was decided to set aside the regular custom of serving lunch and giving door prize and use that money toward buying equipment necessary in hospitalization emergency. Special guests were Mrs. Margaret Callander, Mrs. Elizabeth Dickson and Mrs. Jennie Wallace.

SURPRISE EVENT

Mrs. Jennie Sample, who makes her home with Mrs. Melva Anderson, was quite happily surprised Thursday evening when her son, Clyde, and family, from Hubbard, and son, Earl, and family came in to celebrate her birthday anniversary. She received many gifts and a delicious lunch was later enjoyed. Another son, Joe, of Holliday's Cove, W. Va., was unable to come but rembered her with flowers.

GRANGE MEETING

A valentine program and party was enjoyed by the members on Tuesday evening.

Song, "Let Me Call You Sweetheart," by Grange; Legend of St. Valentine, Margaret Ropp; dramas, by Grange members; surprise feature, Dorothy Repaski and Marjorie Pasquerelli; distribution of valentines, John Cowden; visiting Grange masters, John Kyle of North Beaver, and H. Wellhauser, East New Castle, made very fitting remarks.

A tasty lunch was served by the social committee.

MISSIONARY MEETINGS

The Women's Missionary society of Hopewell met with Mrs. Irwin Ropp on Thursday afternoon.

The Philathea Mission class of the U. P. church met with Mrs. Ross Wallace on Wednesday evening. India was the study, with Mrs. John Holzman and Mrs. Laird Whiting having special parts. Mrs. Fred Twigg and Mrs. Frank Murphy were special guests.

FRIDAY NIGHT CLUB

Mrs. Delmont Michaels was hostess to members of the Friday Night club at her home on Wednesday evening. Winners at cards were: first, Mary Grunewald; second, Mrs. Don Eppinger; galloping, Mrs. Clyde Kelley. Mrs. Glen Rowan was a guest. The hostess served tasty refreshments.

HOME ECONOMIC

An all-day meeting of the Home Economics class was held at the home of Mrs. Colin Campbell on Thursday. Miss Gordon and her assistant, Miss Kemp, directed the class in making slip-covers and reupholstering furniture. Lunch was served at noon. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Robert Wallace.

F. O. Shields is confined to his home with illness.

Charles Beggs has gone to Ft. McClellan for his army training.

Miss Anna Lois Anderson is spending several days with friends at New Concord, O.

Homer Hilty, John Dougherty and Clair Brown have been named air raid wardens for the local community.

Mr. and Mrs. George Lapin visited the former's mother, Mrs. Magdeline Lapin, a patient in Youngstown hospital, north side, on Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Adams and son, Larry, of New Castle, were Saturday evening visitors of Mrs. Henry Wetzel, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Johnson, of Youngstown, were her Sunday evening guests.

Mrs. Lee Zedaker has returned from Warren, O., after spending two days with her daughter, Mrs. Harold Weller, who is recovering very nicely from a recent appendicitis operation. Little Marjorie Weller accompanied her grandmother home.

Mrs. C. C. Johnson, a former local resident, and now of Port Royal, Pa., died on Tuesday morning. Mrs. Johnson had been a cripple for a number of years, being unable to walk. Besides her husband she is survived by two daughters and one son, a sister, Mrs. McCready. Funeral services were held Thursday afternoon at Port Royal.

SCHOOL GIRL STRUCK

Shirley Kehna, aged 14 years, a student at George Washington junior high school, suffered minor injuries at 3:45 o'clock Thursday afternoon when she stepped in front of an auto driven by Francis E. Tinsley of 927 Rose avenue. She was taken to the Jameson Memorial hospital, where an examination revealed no serious injuries and she was able to go to her home afterwards.

Union High Banquet For Fathers-Sons

More Than 200 Attend Annual Dinner Sponsored By High-Y Club

Nothing was omitted at the fathers and sons banquet at the Union high school Thursday night that those in charge felt would help to make the evening a success, and consequently the 200 fathers and sons who attended had a big evening.

All that it takes to make a banquet, including a speaker who has an interesting topic and presents it well, a good toastmaster, tasty food, pep singing, patriotic decorations and music, movies, contests and an appreciative audience to enjoy them all to the utmost—was to be found at Union high school last night.

The banquet was sponsored by the Hi-Y club of Union High with the club's advisor, Robert M. Cowher, as general chairman.

Judge John G. Lamoree was the speaker of the evening and his talk dealt with the legal relationship between father and son, bringing out a number of seldom considered points.

Toastmaster for the banquet was Edward Reynolds. He introduced Lee Zedaker, who gave the toast to the sons, and Dahl Zedaker, who gave the toast to the fathers.

Achievement prizes were awarded by Edward Reynolds, Jr., Hi-Y president. The first of these went to L. G. Rudesill as the father with the most sons present. Earl Ammons got his award for being the father with the biggest waistline. Julian Miller and his father had the highest total for their combined ages, while Mike Bowden and his son Jimmy had the lowest total of ages.

As further entertainment the Filigenzi Trio played several selections and later several reels of war films were shown.

But as always, a banquet must have food. And Thursday evening the ladies of the P. T. A. saw to this important consideration in handsome style.

Mrs. J. E. Leasure was chairman of the kitchen committee, with Mrs. Harry Brown, Mrs. Ralph Jordan, Mrs. Albert Pilshaw, Mrs Nick Raymond, Mrs. Fred Stickle, Mrs. R. B Peterson, Mrs. Russell Shaffer and Mrs. John Stimple. Dining room chairman was Mrs. Jack Grittie, with Mrs. J. W. Carter, Mrs. Ed Donley, Mrs. Howard Cox, Mrs. Harold Barber, Mrs. Otis Matthews and Mrs. David Curtis members of the committee.

Among faculty members of Union High to whom credit is due for the success of the affair are Robert Salsbury, art supervisor of the school, in charge of decorations, and Richard M. Patterson, who led the pep singing and the patriotic music that was played by the school band.

Regardless of the racket, and Emily Post, too, you've got to stir hard to make sugar do its do.

Large Increase In Defense Stamp Sales

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 20.—Sales of ten-cent defense saving stamps during January increased nearly 500 per cent over the previous high mark established in December, 1941, according to figures published today by the treasury department. January sales for the five demoninations of stamps aggregated $41,005,736.80 as compared with the December total of $25,650,562.80.

The sale of defense savings stamps of all denominations kept pace with the general increase of defense bonds and stamps, which increased from $528,599,000 in December to $1,060,547,000 during January.

ANKLE FRACTURED

Mrs. M. D. Lichtenstine, of 604 Oak street, sustained a fractured ankle, Wednesday, when she fell on cellar steps at her home. Mrs. Lichtenstine, though suffering much pain, is getting along as well as can be expected.

The sin in counterfeiting is bad workmanship. If phony money could be made perfect, nobody would ever lose by it.

Golden Jubilee Plans Progress

Committees In Charge Of Fiftieth Anniversary In Session Last Night

ELLWOOD CITY, Feb. 20—The 50th Anniversary committee heads met in the Chamber of Commerce rooms last night and received instructions as to the duties of their committee and the general coordination of all committees.

Festivities for the affair will take place from July 26 to August 1, inclusive.

General chairman J. W. Offutt and his executive committee consisting of Honorary Chairman Burgess Clyde Houk, Vice Chairman D. A. Evans, Elmer Greenham and F. E. Moore, Finance Chairman J. J. McLaughlin, Treasurer David Jones, Jr., and Secretary R. J. Schill, took each committee and thoroughly outlined the functions of each committee and informed each committee head of their immediate duties such as filing a budget of expenses that their committee will need to make their event successful.

The name for the 50th birthday celebration has been given the name of "Golden Jubilee" and the organization will be incorporated as a non-profit organization.

The pageant spectacle committee chairman, W. F. Kegel and his vice chairman, Wm. McGlincey, recommended to the executive committee that the John B. Rodgers Producing company be engaged for a sum of $2500.00 to produce the spectacle "America on Parade." The spectacle will involve 1,000 persons in the cast and the stage will be 392 feet long.

Special events chairman, Paxton Fike and his vice chairman, Ralph Herge, gave a preliminary report on the extra features to be held throughout the week such as the huge parade headed by Ernest Reinheimer and Tom Sleighter. Sportsman Day headed by Bill Strouse, Rides Day headed by Paxton Fike, antiques display committee headed by Mrs. Ann Hunter, church committee headed by Rev. Herman Patton, Rev. Father Wilkey, Rev. Father, Galieno, Rabbi Stollman and Rev. Minteer, Governor and Patriotism Day headed by Walter Simpson. Industrial and Labor Day committee headed by Tom Carey and F. E. Moore. The Home-Coming day committee, headed by J. A. Evans, Dr. H. E. Helling, Carl Davidson, John Brenneman and John Powell and Nationality day committee headed by Angelo Squicquero, John Pepescu, Mike Kaiser, Mike Mesol, Leo Franus, Naum Gosheff, Mrs. Anna Berardi, Mrs. Anna Gross, Mrs. Anna Begosi, Mrs. Lee Franus, Mrs. Nick Kaluger and Mrs. Orphanus.

Queens contest chairman, Ralph Conner and vice chairman, Howard Jones, have made preliminary arrangements for their campaign as has program chairman, Ellwood Helling, Jr., and James Dickey.

Novelty chairman, Mike Edelman, will handle all concessions and with his committee will have control of all souvenirs for the 50th birthday of the community.

Advance ticket chairman, Robert Shearer, will have the services of a special ticket agent to help him handle the ticket sale for the spectacle.

Parking chairman, Chief of Police Earnest Hartman, will take care of ample parking facilities for the entire weeks celebration.

A. E. Conner, chairman of the history book of Ellwood City stated that after a few more changes in the book, it will be ready for publication.

Sign plates for autos and other advertising material for the huge affair have been ordered and will be ready for distribution April 1.

King's Daughters Arrange Dinner

ELLWOOD CITY, Feb. 20.—Sixteen members of the King's Daughters class gathered last evening in the parlor of the First U. P. church for their February meeting.

Devotions were in charge of Mrs. Robert Callahan, Mrs. John Aggas and Mrs. J. P. Moyer.

President, Mrs. George Burrows, was in charge of business and named Mrs. Aggas, Mrs. Joe Kaiser and Mrs. Jennie Sarver as a nominating committee. The election will take place at the next meeting to be held in the form of a tureen dinner on Thursday, March 19, at the church. Mrs. Howard Stroup will be in charge of the dinner. Money barrels are to be brought to this meeting.

An informal social hour followed after which tempting refreshments featuring Washington appointments were served by Mrs. Herman Bauder, Mrs. John Nicholls, Mrs. J. E. Van Gorder and Mrs. Carl Bauder.

Zeigler-Kissick Wedding Thursday

Ceremony Performed At East Liberty Presbyterian Church Church By Rev. Frank Weber

ELLWOOD CITY, Feb. 20. — A lovely bride of Thursday, February 19, was Miss Joanne Zeigler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl E. Zeigler of Wayne avenue, who become Mrs. Robert B. Kissick. The bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur R. Kissick, Orchard avenue.

For the officiant at their wedding, the couple chose the same minister who married the bride's parents 25 years ago.

The quiet ceremony took place at 8 o'clock in the sessions rooms of the East Liberty Presbyterian church with Rev. Frank Weber, former pastor of the Ellwood Presbyterian church, performing the single ring service. The immediate families of the couple attended.

For her wedding the bride chose an attractive brown spring costume suit with which she wore poudre blue accessories. A lovely corsage of grape hyacinths and lilies-of-the-valley completed her ensemble.

Miss Grace Wallis and Harold McElwain of this city were the attendants. Miss Wallis chose a becoming poudre blue ensemble with brown accompaniments and her flowers were lilies and pink roses.

After the ceremony the couple left on a motor trip to Harrisburg, New York, Philadelphia and Washington, D. C.

The bride is a popular graduate of the local high school with the class of '39 and has been employed for sometime by the Telephone company. Mr. Kissick graduated with the class of '37 and is associated with the Mathews Conveyor company. They will reside in this city.

Ellwood To Play Aliquippa Tonight

Game Will Be Final Home One For Harold Daubenspeck, Center, And Two Subs

ELLWOOD CITY, Feb. 20.—When the Ellwood high school basketball team meets Aliquippa high tonight in the last home game of the season at Lincoln court, it will mark the final appearance of the regular center, Harold Daubenspeck, and the last game for Dan, guard, and Carl Ottober, forward, substitutes. They will be graduated in the spring.

One of the other regulars, Lewis D'Biago, has quit school to accept employment at the National Tube company. Ottober will not graduate until next year, but will not be eligible for basketball, although he will be for football.

Coach Thurman F. Croft was highly pleased with the fine performance of the locals on Tuesday night when they defeated New Brighton high. With D'Biago gone and Vitkovitch, forward, who led the scoring at New Brighton, out of school with a cold, Croft's hopes aren't any to bright for a victory tonight. Ottober will begin in place of Vitkovitch.

The Reserves of the two schools will play at 7:15 o'clock. This year's Reserves coached by Howard Gills, has achieved a mighty fine record. In a total of 17 games, they have defeated 13 schools with lop-sided scores. They lost to Sharon, Beaver Falls and Aliquippa. The Reserves will try to even the score with the Steelers tonight.

Ellwood will end the current season next Tuesday night at New Castle.

Wurtemburg Church Special Services

ELLWOOD CITY, Feb. 20.—"The Reward of the Righteous" was the theme of last night's sermon at the evangelistic services being held at the Wurtemburg Methodist church with the pastor, Rev. Mary Johnson as the speaker.

Special music included two selections, "Beautiful Life" and "Kneel at the Cross" by a mixed quartet, and a solo, "Must Jesus Bear the Cross Alone?" by A. J. Musselman.

Tonight the pastor will speak on the subject, "The Great Invitation," and there will be more special music.

There will be no service on Saturday night, and the campaign will be ended on Sunday evening.

Slides Shown To Mission Society

ELLWOOD CITY, Feb. 20.—With about 35 members in attendance, the February meeting of the Women's Missionary society took place last evening in the First Baptist church parlor.

Group 3 was in charge of the program, with the captain, Mrs. Mary Williams, conducting the devotions. Mrs. J. D. Sartwell was program chairman and showed slides of the rural and city mission work conducted by the Baptist State association. Music was furnished by Mrs. Nellie Crowley.

Appetizing refreshments were served by Mrs. Edith Sarver and her committee.

Revivals To Begin Sunday At Knox Church

ELLWOOD CITY, Feb. 20.—Beginning on Sunday evening, February 22, and continuing throughout Sunday, March 8, revival meetings will be held every evening except Saturday at the Knox Presbyterian church.

Rev. Wayne Patch, pastor of the Zelienople Methodist church, will be the guest evangelist. Rev. Patch recently conducted special services at the North Sewickley Presbyterian and Providence Baptist churches with much success.

Joseph R. Clark will be in charge of the musical program which will feature special selections and guest singers each evening.

The meetings will begin at 7:30 o'clock and dismiss promptly at 9 o'clock, the pastor, Rev. Robert E. Bell, announces.

Rotarians Hear History Of Bath

Amusing And Informative Talk Given By Fred Mahoney Of The Ellwood Company

ELLWOOD CITY, Feb. 20—Both humorous and informative was the talk given to members of the Rotary club last night at the dinner meeting at the Presbyterian church by Fred Mahoney, of the Ellwood company.

Introduced by V. V. Johnston, Mr. Mahoney talked about the history of the bath and bath tub. Only one hundred years ago, the first bath tub was installed in America, in 1850 the White House was equipped with bathing facilities; and ten years later leading city hotels began to advertise "bath accommodations".

Special guests were Harold McCullough, New Castle; William Hedegore, Bessemer; Charles Cable, of Philadelphia, former local post office employee; Rev. Herman Patton, this city; and Howard Ackley, member of the R. A. F. stationed at New Brunswick. He is a nephew of Robert J. Shearer and is visiting here.

With much regret members bade farewell to one of their best liked members, Harold Caplan, who left today with Ellwood's draftees for induction into the army. A leave of absence was voted Johnny Ray, who has been out-of-town for several months.

Thomas Patterson was named "on to Butler" chairman. A district Rotary meeting will be held there in May.

Washington Tea At North Star School Monday

ELLWOOD CITY, Feb. 20.—On Monday afternoon, February 23, beginning at 1:30 o'clock a George Washington tea will be held in the band room of the North Star school.

All mothers of students and women of the community interested in the school band are invited to attend.

Through the afternoon, a varied program will be presented under the direction of Miss Helen Garmon and Anthony Basile.

Appropriate refreshments will be served under the direction of Mrs. William Fehl, Mrs. Carl Mathews and Mrs. Elmer Best.

GRAND CHIEF AT PYTHIAN MEETING

ELLWOOD CITY, Feb. 20.—Grand Chief Mrs. Olive Henderson, of Farrell, was the guest of the Ellwood Pythian Sisters lodge at the regular meeting, held at the Bank hall last evening.

Mrs. Henderson gave an interesting talk on comradeship and faith. The charter was draped in memory of a district officer.

In the latter part of the evening a tempting lunch was served to the 30 members attending by Mrs. Maud Price and her committee. Thursday, March 5, is the time of the next meeting.

SPORTSMEN'S CLUBS TO MEET MONDAY

ELLWOOD CITY, Feb. 20.—All sportsmen of the district are invited to attend a combined meeting of the Ellwood and Wampum Rod and Gun clubs on Monday evening at eight o'clock, at the lodge, on the Wampum road.

Reports will be given of the state federation meeting of sportsmen's clubs held in Harrisburg on February 12 and 13. Refreshments will also be served by a committee.

SCHOOLMEN MEET.

ELLWOOD CITY, Feb. 20.—William Boyd, John Raschella, Lawrence Flinner, H. F. Wilson, J. Ellis Bell and Ralph Shaffer of the Ellwood School Association attended a meeting of the Beaver Valley Schoolmen's Association held last night at a Rochester church. The main address on the rising cost of living was given by Mr. Beatty, of Pittsourgh.

FIREMEN CALLED

ELLWOOD CITY, Feb. 20.—Firemen were called to the McCandless apartments, in Circle Way, this morning, where a small fire resulted from the thawing of frozen water pipes with a blow torch. The damage was only slight.

U. S. And Dutch Forces Increase Plane Activity

Vigilance In Area Of West Indies Is Being Extended After Sub Attacks

By EDWARD ELIAS
Staff Correspondent, Netherlands Indies News Agency

WILLEMSTAD, Curacao, Feb. 20—United States and Dutch forces today increased their vigilance in Netherlands West Indies waters after a third outburst of submarine activity in which a Panama-registered tanker was torpedoed off the coast of Aruba.

In addition, shells exploded near the Standard Oil refinery on Aruba, but it was believed they were stray projectiles from non-enemy sources.

Last night Curacao was completely blacked out. United States bombers roared through the tropical skies on constant day-and-night patrol. U. S. troops garrisoned in these islands were on the alert for any emergency.

Homes, offices and stores were under guard all night. Every building had at least one man standing guard.

However, there is no fear among the population of the Dutch West Indies. As one Curacaoan put it, "I feel pretty safe when the United States bombers go roaring over my head."

Peaceful Week Ago

Curacao and Aruba a week ago were peaceful islands busy with the refining and shipping of oil. Big tankers came and went, bringing crude oil to the refineries—the Standard Oil plant on Aruba, biggest in the world, and the Royal Dutch Shell refinery on Curacao, third biggest. These refineries supply a large proportion of all the oil consumed by the Allied war effort.

The West Indies had prepared long ago for an attack, its youth was being trained for military service. British troops came here as long ago as May, 1940. A few weeks ago United States air and ground troops arrived, by agreement between Washington and the Netherlands government, to assist in the defense of these strategic Caribbean islands.

Yet the submarine torpedoing of four tankers early Monday morning and the shelling of the Standard Oil refinery—bringing the war to the western hemisphere for the first time—came as a shock to the local population.

Thought Rehearsal

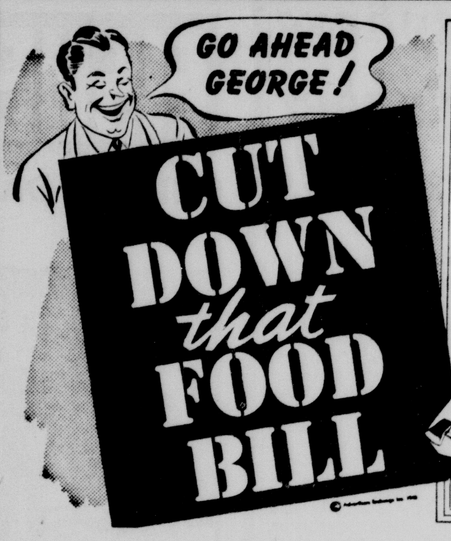

When the sirens wailed Monday morning, most of the inhabitants didn't believe it was real war. They thought it was some sort of rehearsal. Still all the air-raid wardens went to their posts.

The United States soldiers are welcome guests in the streets of Curacao capital, Willemstad, and Arubas Port, San Nicolas.

The local population reads with great interest cables from New York summarizing the editorials of the U. S. press and notes with approval that the United States considers defense of these islands important to its own interests.

"We are in the best of company when we are with the United States," said one inhabitant, and he voiced the general sentiment.

"Saw sub sank same" is too wordy for a pilot carrying bombs. The last two words should be taken for granted.

Manufacturers value their production of candy at nearly $300,000,000 a year, according to Census reports. Allowing a 33 percent markup for distribution, this figures out to a yearly allowance of $3 worth of candy per person.

Every year about 2,200 fatal automobile accidents—one out of every 13—involve a driver travelling from another state. According to the Census Bureau, eighty percent of these deaths occur on rural highways.

Home canning is not a forgotten art according to the Census Bureau. Manufacturer's reports on production of jar rings indicate that the nation's housewives put up 1,500,000,000 cans of fruit, preserves, and other foods annually.

Field Marshal Makes War Analysis Of Week

(Editor's note: Determined attacks on Java and Sumatra and intensification of the battle for Burma must be expected following the fall of Singapore, Field Marshal Lord Ironside predicts today in his war analysis for International News Service.)

By FIELD MARSHAL LORD IRONSIDE
Written Expressly for International News Service

LONDON, Feb. 20.—Two events dominated the minds of the people of this country during the last week—the fall of Singapore and the escape of the German warships from Brest.

Both events moved public opinion profoundly. They illustrate the difficulties and set-backs inherent in being on a general defensive in a vast area without having any offensive blow to strike in return. The Japanese have been able to develop their offensive as and how they liked. Were it not for the Russian offensive the Germans would be able to do so.

The fall of Singapore was a great military defeat. Our men fought magnificently but their defense was a hasty improvisation against a well prepared and well planned Japanese assault. No evacuation such as took place at Dunkirk and in Greece was contemplated. We have lost a large number of trained men and a lot of material. Neither can be replaced easily so far from the United Kingdom or the United States.

The effect of the defeat has been to stiffen our determination to hang grimly to what we still hold until the Java air forces are strong enough to enable us to take the offensive against Japan and her communications.

Two results of our defeat must certainly be expected in the near future—determined attacks against Java and Sumatra and intensification of the battle for Burma.

The escape of the three German ships and their safe passage through the Dover straits in daylight once more brought home to all the possibility of invasion. These ships were attacked for hours by hundreds of aircraft and many surface craft, yet escaped being sunk. They will be bombed at the locality to which they escaped, that is certain. But we must not forget the thousands of tons of bombs dropped on them at Brest which neither knocked them out nor prevented them from putting to sea at 30 knots.

Misty Weather Aids

It is true we cannot compare the preparations at port and the putting to sea of a great armada of transports crammed with men with the movements of these three ships, but chances of misty weather and the lack of warning owing to the shortness of the voyage from ports of Europe demonstrate the task which lies before the navy and air force during the coming spring until the nights get shorter.

The effect of this escape will be a salutary one, making us overhaul all our warning arrangements.

Field Marshal Erwin Rommel made a forward movement to Gazala in Libya but went back without showing his hand. Our offensive cannot be long delayed if we are to forestall any big German air offensive in north Africa.

The news coming from Russia is meager in detail. The Russian advance continues but they have come up against organized positions in depth. The fighting is severe and there is no sign of the German morale weakening. One sign of the coming of spring has been the sortie of two ships of the Baltic fleet through the ice to shell the German batteries from the flank.

The Smolensk salient is being steadily narrowed by the Red army by thrusts toward Nevel and Vitebsk in the north and from Briansk in the south.

We can but surmise what Hitler intends to do in the spring. We can be certain he will try to do something perhaps within a few months. There are areas in which the weather will allow him to do so.

Is he so fixed on the Russian front that he can only defend himself there, or turn his defense into an offensive? Can he collect sufficient force to attack to the east against the Caucasus and the Nile valley? Will he have a try at the United Kingdom?

Such questions point to the urgent necessity of producing a blow which will prevent him from working his wicked will when and where he wishes. The Allied supreme direction must be thoroughly alert to this.

Hitler's choice cannot be an easy one. There are signs of his increasing difficulties in finding men for any great offensive project.

His means are not what they were before the start of the Russian campaign. Bold action will upset his plans.

New Cabinet Member Sees Victory Over Axis

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Sir Stafford Cripps, "mystery man" of British politics who has just been inducted into Prime Minister Winston Churchill's streamlined new war cabinet as Lord Privy Seal and leader of the House of Commons, has rarely been interviewed. His official attitude and his firm conviction in an Anglo-American victory if complete cooperation is achieved were revealed today in an exclusive interview granted to Kathleeen Harriman, staff correspondent of International News Service in London.)

By KATHLEEN HARRIMAN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Feb. 20.—"I am never pessimistic and I have no doubts about the outcome.

"But Britain and America must stick together in the Far East and quit blaming individuals when something goes wrong."

It was Sir Stafford Cripps speaking—Cripps the little-known but now powerful element in British affairs who has just been appointed to the British war cabinet.

Cripps, until recently Britain's ambassador to Moscow but who now will replace Richard Clement Attlee as Prime Minister Winston Churchill's deputy in the House of Commons, received me in his Whitehall apartment.

He was in good spirits and calmly confident of the outcome of the whole war business. Cripps is a particularly important man now because he knows more about Russia than any other Briton. He had been there for almost two years prior to his recent return, and except for Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden is the only Britisher to visit the country officially for any length of time since the outbreak of war.

Cripps expressed firm conviction that Adolf Hitler would launch a general offensive in Russia early in April, striking at the southern front.

"Hitler will probably wait to see how things go there before attempting any new drive on Moscow," Sir Stafford said.

"I am convinced that success for our cause in Russia this spring is dependant upon supplies from Great Britain and America.

"I take an optimistic view of the outcome—provided that America and ourselves give all possible support.

"Supplies from the United States are just coming into operation in Russia."

The former ambassador confirmed recent reports that Josef Stalin's foresight in moving vital armament and industrial plants back to the Urals when the German invasion began is now bearing fruit..

"It is an important point," Cripps said. "Many of these factories moved east on the Urals are now beginning to come into production.

"The Russian civilians have been magnificent. Even women and children are playing a part in industrial production and in guerilla warfare. Women especially trained in the use of rifles and hand grenades are performing their dangerous guerilla tasks brilliantly.

"No job appears too difficult for Russian women. They are digging trenches and performing heavy manuel labor as well as doing skilled work."

Cripps said he was ready to start on his job immediately. He was obviously pleased with his appointment and voiced belief that the cabinet changes finally decided upon by Churchill would tend to greater unity throughout Britain. Cripps, despite his own knighthood conferred in 1930 and his aristocratic birth as Son of Lord Parmoor, has been laborite since his entry into politics.

SLIPPERY ROCK UNION

Slippery Rock W. C. T. U. held its monthly meeting in the home of Mrs. Tillie and Mary Boak on Thursday evening. Mrs. Armstrong was the leader. After devotions, Mrs. Helen Boak, accompanied by Mrs. Smith, presented a vocal solo, followed by a reading on the life of Frances Willard by Mrs. McClymonds. Mrs. J. A. Boak gave an interesting talk on temperance.

The lesson, on "The Amazing Story of Repeal", was taught by Mrs. Smith. Refreshments were served by the hostesses.

Next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Elmer Armstrong on the second Thursday evening of March.

Mexico Will Guard Lower California

(International News Service)

ENSENADA, Lower California.—Ex-President Lazaro Cardenas of Mexico looks ahead to more than the military security of Lower California in contriving a defense stratagem for this lonely peninsula. As president, Cardenas used Lower California as a proving ground for long-range agro-economic experiments; as commander-in-chief of Mexico's Pacific defenses he will turn the region into an armed camp if need be to insure that coming generations may reap the benefits of these experiments.

Agronomy is the consuming interest of unassuming, abstemious Lazaro Cardenas. Even in his leasure moments he would rather talk about new developments in soil enrichment or irrigational engineering than anything else.

General Cardenas believes the region will derive great benefits when Mexico's great Angostura dam is completed. An abundance of water and water power will be Mexico's way out of poverty, he stresses.

Transform Wastes

General Cardenas expects to transform Lower California's wastes into productive garden spots—once the fascist menace to this outpost of Mexico has been put down.

Even in the major part of Lower California's southern half, where nothing but cactus has taken root in the sunbaked topsoil, water runs a comparatively few feet below the surface, General Cardenas revealed. In the absence of rivers which might be used for irrigational purposes, the problem, he declared, is how to harness the subterranean streams.

During Cardenas' last year in office he pioneered the blue printing of an ingenius system for getting Lower California's plentiful groundwater and potentially rich topsoil together. This involves creation of a vast network of Diesel-powered pumping plants, spreading from below the Desert of Sebastian Vizcaino to the wide plains in the Magdalena Bay area and down to semi-tropical La Paz.

Provision would be made for the maximum retention of the water through scientific terracing and preparation of the soil. In some sections a mica crust would have to be broken up by power ploughing.

Solves Fuel Problem

Providing fuel for such a chain of pumping plants is a problem in itself. But Mexico has the oil— and in abundance. The only remaining perplexer is how to get the oil to the irrigation zone. But Cardenas thought of that too.

Years prior to the drawing up of the Lower California irrigational project, Mexico had pondered the question of how to bring a steady supply of oil from the Vera Cruz and Tampico fields on the east coast across the nation's more backward Pacific ports.

A pipeline from the Atlantic seaboard refinery town of Minatitlan across the Isthmus of Tehauntepec to Salina Cruz was the clearly indicated answer. A good part of the preliminary work on the pipeline was carried out during the Cardenas administration by Secretary of Communications Modesto Rolland. No great constructional obstacles stand in the way; a few months work would bring Mexico's "black gold" to the Pacific. From Salina Cruz a regular tanker service would quickly convey the fuel to La Paz.

Great Agricultural Wealth

Lower California's northern territory does not have the water problem which confronts the south. Here one finds occasional green valleys and pasture land. But here too the soil must be prepared for agriculture and the available water dammed or piped down from the foothills before it seeps into the sands of the arroyos.

Once the soil is watered and once the so-called "Trans-peninsular highway" becomes more than a burro trail, the region should make tremendous headway. Its great mineral and agricultural wealth lies virtually untouched.

MOISTURE METER

(International News Service)

LANSING, Mich.—A moisture meter has been developed at Michigan State college here to tell a western farmer if his soil needs water and, if so, how much irrigating he should do. Small pieces of porous plaster are placed at designated levels below the ground and the meter is attached to them by means of wires. Dials, registering the amount of electrical resistance in the buried plates, give accurate data on the moisture content of the soil.

State Employes Get Monday Off

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Feb. 20 — Gov. Arthur H. James on Thursday declared an official holiday for state employes Monday in observance of Washington's birthday, rescinding an earlier order that workers would be on duty because of the special session of the legislature.

The fact that the house will be in recess and the senate will not reconvene until 4 p. m. Monday was given as the reason for the governor's decision to grant a holiday.

Still, if generals had fortified Singapore, it might have land defenses and no guns pointing to the sea.

Moose Plan Big Initiation Here

Class Of Thousand Members From District Five Will Be Obligated

JUDGE LAMOREE TO GIVE ADDRESS

On Sunday afternoon, February 22, at The Arena, on Grove street the Loyal Order of Moose lodges of District No. 5, will have a mass initiation ceremony, when a class of approximately 1,000 members will be inducted into the order.

The class will be represented by Judge John G. Lamoree, of the Lawrence county court, who will also deliver an address on "George Washington."

Fourteen lodges in the district will be represented by candidates and delegates, including Ellwood City, Butler, Beaver Falls, Chicora, Mercer, Greenville, Sharon, Farrell, Freedom, New Brighton, Aliquippa, Rochester, Ambridge and New Castle.

Vice President George Patterson and his committee have completed their plans for the entertainment of this large group of visitors and for the program of the day.

The doors of the Arena will be open at 1 o'clock and a group of patriotic numbers will be played by Lew Ferrell and his band. The mass meeting will get under way at 2:30 o'clock, with Governor Harold Shaffer presiding. He will welcome the visitors and then turn the meeting over to Governor and Vice President George Patterson, of Ellwood City, and his officers of Lodge No. 93, who will conduct the meeting. The Sharon degree team and New Crastle drill team will conduct the initiation work for the new class.

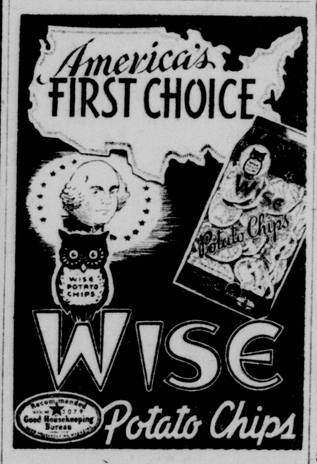

The Grand Lodge Officer of the Day will be Jack J. Stoehr who will address the assembly. President J. Perrotta, and the new secretary, Vendel Ledner, of Butler, and Vice President Dave Price, of Mercer, will also be present and will speak.

New Castle Lodge, No. 51, will be the host lodge, and Governor Shaffer has appointed W. L. Ringer, chairman of the arrangements. After the initiation ceremony at the Arena, the guests will go to the home of the New Castle Lodge on South Mercer street, where lunch and entertainment will be provided.

The degree teams of New Castle, Ellwood City, Butler and Greenville will assist the Sharon Ritualistic Staff.

It is expected that in the neighborhood of 2,500 visitors will be here provided the weather is agreeable. This will close the "All Out-All America" campaign conducted by the Grand Lodge, as a means of helping to win the war. The Grand Lodge will purchase $50,000 worth of Defense Bonds to help in this effort.

Army And Navy Have Unified High Command

Such Is Statement Before House Committee By Secretary Knox

By GRIFFING BANCROFT
International News Service
Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—The house naval affairs committee, seeking data on relations between the army and navy high commands, on Thursday was informed by Secretary of Navy Knox that this nation now "virtually" has a unified high command to conduct the war against the Axis powers.

He cited the joint army-navy board as performing this function.

Knox's statements were made to the committee behind closed doors but members disclosed that his assurances concerning a coordinated command had on the whole satisfied them.

One member, however, Rep. Maas of Minn., ranking Republican on the committee, expressed dissatisfaction. He said that Knox's statements were "not satisfactory" to him and indicated he would demand further information.

No specific legislation was before the committee, but these members said they hoped to approach a "showdown" on the issue during the secretary's secret testimony.

Although the committee previously voted down proposals to investigate the Pearl Harbor disaster, it was regarded as certain that Knox also was questioned closely about the Dec. 7 attack, since at least part of the cause of that defeat was due to lack of co-ordination between army and navy commanders in that area.

Leader in the demands for a unified U. S. war command is Rep. Maas (R) Minn., ranking minority member of the committee.

"We hope today to take the lead in forming a supreme unified command in this country," Maas declared. "We have set up a general staff of various allied commanders to work with us, but that certainly isn't going to very effective unless we have a general staff of our own."

Maas' plan would be to create a new command and provide that on it would serve high officers of the army, navy and the air corps of the two services, and perhaps a representative of the state department as well.

Your Federal Income Tax

No. 41

AUTOMOBILE DEDUCTIONS

With the number of automobile owners registering in the millions, the question of the deductions for the cost of operation and maintenance of a motorcar frequently arises. The purchase price of an automobile, whether it is to be used for business or pleasure, cannot be deducted from gross income. If used for business, it is a capital expenditure; if used for pleasure, it is a personal expenditure—both deductions being expressly prohibited by the income tax law.

Several deductions, however, are allowable in connection with the cost of operation of an automobile used either for business or pleasure. If used exclusively for business, deductions may be taken for the cost of gasoline, oil, repairs, garage rent, amounts paid for insurance, and other necessary operation and upkeep expenses, as well as damages paid for injury to another while the car was being used for business purposes and losses sustained by reason of damage to the car while being used for such purposes, provided such damages and losses are not covered by insurance or otherwise. Depreciation based on the cost of the car and its estimated useful life also is deductible.

Other deductible items, irrespective of whether the car is used for business or pleasure, are sums paid during the taxable year for personal property taxes and municipal taxes, interest on money borrowed for the purchase of a car, and losses by fire or storm or theft, to the extent not compensated for by insurance or otherwise.

A loss occasioned by damage to an automobile maintained for pleasure, where such damage results from the faulty driving of the taxpayer or other person operating the automobile, but is not due to the wilful act or negligence of the taxpayer, is a deductible loss in the computation of net income. If damage to a taxpayer's automobile results from the faulty driving of the operator of an automobile with which the automobile of the taxpayer collides, the loss occasioned to the taxpayer by such damage is likewise deductible.

Fees paid for automobile inspection and automobiles title registration of automobiles used for pleasure are not ordinarily allowable deductions.

Babson Says Tire Policy Is Wrong

By ROGER W. BABSON

EN ROUTE TO WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—During the past two weeks, I have been making a careful study of the tire situation. I am convinced of two things:—(1) The American people can have tires if willing to go without certain other cotton and rubber products. (2) The American people are willing to go without almost anything if they can avoid putting up their cars.

Roger Babson

Transportation Is Fundamental

When Washington—on the spur of the moment—says we can't have any more tires for the duration, it is playing with a buzz saw. Transportation is fundamental. It always has existed and is more needed today than ever. Of course, much of it is unnecessary. We all can, and will, cut our mileage 30% to 40% or more. But we all want a car with tires,—capable of running if we need it. Furthermore, my guess is that—until Washington gives us time to build buggies and raise horses again—we are going to get tires.

Tires are made mainly of cotton with some rubber and a very little wire. Of cotton, we have a great surplus. By switching spindles from something else we are willing to give up, the fabric could easily be made. There is an enormous amount of wild rubber at the upper waters of the Amazon. It will be expensive to gather this; but it can be gathered and floated down on rafts to Para.

Where We Can Get Rubber

This rubber can then be bought in sailing vessels and old steamers to Tampa, Mobile, New Orleans and Texas ports where the cotton is. Furthermore, these ports are near the naval stores and asphalt supplies which could be mixed with the pure rubber. Moreover, the South has a surplus of unemployed people who could make tires under proper supervision. In addition to the above, we have a great undeveloped field of "camelback" retreading and capping rubber.

The above facts show that everything is available to make tires except the will on the part of our Washington dictators to let us buy them. Moreover, the methods which I visualize will not in any way interfere with the waging of the war. We will get poorer tires and will need to pay more money for them; but these "ersatz" tires will enable us to always have a car available to use when necessary. This is a reasonable request.

Is Washington Using Sense

The American and Canadian people are willing to cut their driving 50%; they are willing to go without other cotton and rubber products in order to have tires. It especially "gets the goat" of American taxpayers to be told they can have no rubber and, when going to Washington, see these same dictators getting all the tires they want. The whole affair does not make sense. The present program is very unfair to all concerned.

War Needs Should Come First

This program does not in any way handicap our boys at the front or retard the making of airplanes, tanks, or any other necessary war supplies. We are willing to make all the sacrifices necessary; but we do claim that transportation is entirely different from many other things for which we spend money. In other words, while our Washington dictators are free to reserve the necessary cotton, rubber, asphalt, wire, and everything else needed to win the war, they should be willing to let us people decide what we make with the balance. We, and not the Washington dictators, should decide this latter question.

I have seen the American people in many panics. My first one was in 1893 when Washington thought we would all starve to death because we couldn't get gold even though the West was burning corn. The next was in 1907 when Washington thought we would be unable to ride on trains because of the railroad row between Hill and Harriman.

Panics Start In Washington

Then I remember the panic of 1914 when Washington promised to keep us out of war if we would only make certain sacrifices. But once again we were fooled. Then came the panic of 1929 when we were unnecessarily scared into throwing ten million innocent people out of work just because paper stock prices went off 50% or more. Now Washington is starting a panic on rubber and certain other things. Washington may be right this time, but I am determined not to get scared to death just because some young fellows down in Washington cry 'Wolf, Wolf".

Let us remember "Pearl Harbor" and realize we must make sacrifices. Let us, however, remember the "Gold Scare" of 1893; the "Railroad Scare" of 1907; the "War Scares" of 1914-1918; and the "Wall Street Scare" of 1929. In each of these cases, if we had just used common sense and had gone about our business we would be infinitely better off today. Let us intelligently "stretch our rubber" to serve fairly all needs.

FREE FRANCE GROWS NEW WINGS

A Free French pilot, wearing his flying mask, poses beside his new plane which is part of the recently organized Free French air force. Hitherto, the Free French air force was part of the British Royal Air Force but now is a separate fighting unit of the United Nations, under command of General De Brigade Aerienne Marital Valin. Photo was taken in England. Note Cross of Lorraine, emblem of Free France, on plane's engine housing.

Engineers Meet; Hear E. I. BeMent

Mahoning-Shenango Valley Engineers' society members held their monthly dinner meeting in The Castleton on Wednesday night.

President J. B. Lasky introduced Earl I. BeMent, of Pittsburgh, who delivered an instructive address on "Operator Training." In addition, he showed films relative to the talk and movies regarding war news of 1940 and '41.

The date of the next meeting will be announced later.

ONE WHO GOT AWAY

NO MORE ONIONS

LONDON—The last of Britain's onions has been distributed.

Early last summer, the ministry of food promised a minimum allowance of two pounds per head of population—but the rainy August weather cut the expected onion crop to less than a third of what had been expected.

To make up for the deficiency, the government bought several consignments from Spain but even this allowed the population only slightly more than a popnd per person.

How to make Pillsbury's
Savory Salmon Casserole
A hearty one dish supper!

Complete recipe:

1. Pan-fry 1 c. chopped celery, ¼ c. chopped green pepper, ¼ c. chopped onion, 1 c. sliced canned mushrooms in 2 Tbsps. butter until tender. 2. Add 2 c. (1 lb. can) flaked salmon, 1¼ c. canned whole-kernel corn, well drained. 3. Combine ¼ c. butter and 5 Tbsps. Enriched Pillsbury's Best Flour in saucepan over direct heat. Add 2½ c. milk gradually, stirring until thickened. (Note the smooth, creamy goodness Pillsbury's Best gives this simple white sauce! Samples of Pillsbury's Best are tested every hour to insure the inviting creamy-white color that makes your foods look so appetizing.) Add ¼ tsp. salt, ¼ tsp. curry powder, and a dash of pepper. 4. Add salmon mixture; blend well. 5. Turn into 2-qt. casserole . . . TOP WITH FLAKY FINGER ROLLS: 6. Sift and measure 1 c. Enriched Pillsbury's Best Flour. Add 1½ tsp. baking powder (or 1 tsp. double-acting) and ¼ tsp. salt; sift again. (You can give your family the benefit of two B-vitamins and iron by regular use of Enriched Pillsbury's Best. This enrichment in no way affects the appearance, flavor, or fine baking quality of Pillsbury's Best.) 7. Cut in 2 Tbsps. shortening until quite fine. Add 6 Tbsps. milk (about); mix until all flour is dampened. 8. Knead lightly on a floured board a few seconds. 9. Divide in 6 equal pieces; shape each into a finger roll. (Notice how tender your dough is, how easy-to-handle, when made with Pillsbury's Best! This superb flour is the product of wheats which are selected, milled, and bake-proved with one goal in mind—your baking success! Rigid baking tests are made 4 to 6 times a day during milling, and samples are tested every hour for creamy, uniform color.) 10. Place finger rolls in cartwheel formation over hot mixture. 11. Bake in hot oven (425° F.) 25 to 30 min. The enticing aroma of Savory Salmon Casserole, a-bubble in the oven, brings husband, children (even guests!) hungrily to the kitchen. And then, when they take their first bite of that tender, flaky topping, you'll know why we say—Pillsbury's Best is your best choice every time you bake! More Bake-Proved, Jury-picked recipes in every bag!

Sterling (Solid) Silver . . . yours for THRIFT STARS!
Dress up your table with precious sterling silverware! This silver, exquisite in line and of true, regular "sterling" weight and quality, may be had in exchange for Pillsbury Thrift Stars. New Castle Hopes For Win Tonight And Section Title

Will Battle New Brighton In Dawes Gym In New Brighton In Loop Setto

Teams Played Extra-Session Here With New Castle On the Long End

New Castle high school basketball team faces its biggest hurdle of the Section Three race tonight at the spacious Dawes gym in New Brighton. New Castle needs but one more win in the next two starts to take the section championship. A win tonight will make the locals titleholders. The Reserves will play the preliminary game at 7 o'clock.

The New Castle team is making the trip to the valley by bus. New Castle holds a 33 to 30 win at New Castle over the New Brighton team in an extra-session battle. New Brighton will be on the rebound tonight after dropping to Ellwood City on Tuesday evening.. It will be a humdinger of a game all the way no doubt.

Lineup Stays Intact

Head Coach Phil Bridenbaugh intimated today that he would not make any lineup changes for the crucial contest this evening, but will start with the same team that has won eight in a row.

No doubt quite a few New Castle high students and fans will follow the Red and Black tossers to the Dawes gym for the battle. If New Castle loses tonight, they can still be crowned as Section champions by defeating Ellwood City high here next Tuesday evening. If New Castle drops both games, the one tonight and to Ellwood, they can still tie for the title and will be in the playoffs, providing either Aliquippa or Beaver Falls can dump Ambridge in which event New Castle can lose both of their remaining games.

Following are the probable lineups for the game tonight:

New Castle		New Brighton
Lee	f	Eiler
Ciazza	f	Peluso
Melichar	c	Farrow
Zubkowsky	g	Butler
Burris	g	Ahend

BUY FIVE PITCHERS

Indianapolis, under new ownership, has bought five pitchers: Logan from the Reds, Rich from the Red Sox, Reid from Newark, Tauscher from Minneapolis and Rachunok from Montreal.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS LAND

Russ Baxter of this city, top man among Lawrence county middleweight amateurs, will oppose Norman Fitch of Chester, W. Va., on Tuesday night in a trio-round affair in Ellwood City for the benefit of the B. V. M. club. Other bouts listed follows: Clint Brown vs Ozzie Pegese; Pete Misto vs Roy Crews; Nick Retardo vs Leo Simonvitch; Jimmy Bagamery vs Harry Madison; Baby Leasure vs Carl Rouse; Bruno Pishionero vs Pete Carey and Al Leasure vs Wayne Dillon. John Locisano matched the foregoing boxers.

Lou Ambers, former lightweight champion, has entered the Coast Guard as a boatswain, first class . . . Alf Pike, center on the New York Rangers, is in a New York hospital because of a knee dislocation . . . Marquis of Queensberry in London reports the British soldiers want to see their ally, Private Joe Louis Barrow in fistic action. Joe will box Abe Simon for the benefit of army relief in March in this country.

Mioland, Porter's Cap and Pictor will be among the field in the mile and an eighth OPA Locka purse It is worth $1,500 to the winner.

Mickey Diamond, boxer's manager, in Philadelphia, was placed under a five years peace bond yesterday because he threatened Leo Rains of the State Athletic commission. His license as a manager, will be revoked. Rains said. Diamond formerly was a fighter. During a recent show, Diamond struck a deputy boxing commissioner. Rains had Diamond ejected, hence the threat.

Sugar Robinson, Harlem, fights Maxie Berger tonight in New York and is apt to put Maxie on the shelf . . . Justin Barry will continue as head football coach at Southern California another year.

Factor Girls Win From Sharon Five

The Joe Factor girls broke a losing steak at the Falcon hall last night by edging out a strong Sharon Buhl club girls team 27 to 26. This was the first game that the Sharon girls have lost in four years.

The Factors led the Sharonites the first period 6 to 1 and at the half the Sharonites had come back to tie the count at 9-9. The third period found the Factors in the front again 20 to 18. In the final minute of play Miss Marie Wheaton dumped in the winning field goal to be the outstanding star of the game. Starring in the game besides Miss Wheaton were Jean Cerutti and Jerry Gall .

The Westinghouse girls have cancelled their Sunday game here with the Factors until a later date. The Factors will play the famous Goldenson Vanities of Pittsburgh on Sunday at the Falcon hall, while the Falcons are over at the K. Pulaski hall for an engagement.

Fido Gets a Thrill

Members of the Dayton, O., fire department are shown here going to the rescue of a small black-and-tan mongrel dog which, in some mysterious manner, got itself marooned on the base of a bridge. As the dog was unhurt and its fur dry it could not have fallen to the base or swam to it.

Maxie Berger To Box "Sugar" Tonight

Harlem Welterweight Has Not Been Defeated In 116 Bouts

By JACK MAHON
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—The Sugar Kid, dancing Ray Robinson, goes to the post once again here tonight and the wise guys are laying 3-1 he romps home with victory at the expense of Maxie Berger, also of New York, in a 12-round shindig at Madison Square Garden. Robinson has not been defeated in 116 fights.

Mr. Robinson is the outstanding prospect developed since Henry Armstrong zoomed out of a Los Angeles breadline to fame as the first man in history to hold three world's boxing championships at one time.

Berger's friends from the Bronx, where he now resides after a career as Canadian welterweight champion, think Maxie is a cinch to go the route, at least, and laugh off the wagers that Ray will flatten their favorite.

Church League Games Tonight

Three more games will be played in the New Castle church league at the "Y" tonight with the first game starting at 7:45 and having the Mahoning team playing the Central Christians.

In the second game the First Presbyterian team will play the Third U. P. team and in the third game the First Baptists will play the St. Marys team.

KRACUM ENLISTS

George Kracum, fullback of the 1940 University of Pittsburgh eleven, who understudied Pug Manders in the backfield of the Brooklyn Dodgers through the last National Football league campaign, has enlisted in the United States Army.

SPORTS WORLD RAMBLINGS

Sportin' round the sports bases:

Lawrence county will again have its bounce and dribble extravaganza, officials of the annual city-county basketball tournament revealed today. Local flippers will vie for the gonfalon during the second and third weeks in March. To equalize matters, a class A and class B division will segregate the bigger clubs from the smaller ones, as in past tourneys.

Charles "Bugs" Walther, one of the official charge d'affaires, was available for comment and asserted that one of the military funds will be the beneficiary this season. Sid Lockley, treasurer, has relinquished his position, due to the press of duties. Michael Babovsky, better known to the sports crowd as "Jake" takes over as tender of the coffer.

Frank "Hank" Nocera, who resigned as Shenango Township high's athletic coach to enter the United States navy, has penned an interesting letter from the training base in Norfolk, Va. The south sider keeps within the sports rialto, naming part of the 700 outstanding athletes who make up part of Gene Tunney's physical education staff.

Gus Zarnas, the All-American footballer from Ohio State; Steve Andrako, another A. A. from the same school; John Rokisky, Duquesne university A. A.; Jack Stephenson of Ohio State and Joe Maniacci, the Chicago Bears' crusher, form some of the top name gridsmen on hand. In baseball, a pretty fair guy by the name of Bob Feller and another standout major leaguer, Sam Chapman, are in camp.

Fred Apostoli of the boxing circle entertains with exhibitions. The Naval Base basketball team, packed with former collegiate greats, plays at least twice a week and provides topnotch entertainment, Chief Petty Officer Nocera writes. The "coach" sends regard to his local friends. Nocera's address, in case someone cares to drop a note, is Athletic Office, P-4, Squad 6, U. S. N. T. S., Norfolk, Va.

Unless they do something about it, the Boston Red Sox face a southpaw famine. Oscar Judd, snatched from Louisville, may be the only portsider on the Beantowners' staff....Ollie Carnegie, who has played 11 seasons with Buffalo, will be back again this season. The Pittsburgher, who played in New Castle numerous times in the good old days, has driven in more than 1,000 runs.

"Lefty" Grove's baseball career is interestingly depicted in one of the national mags this week...Another mag has started a series regarding the Yankees, dating back to 1903. The starting chapter seemed rather drab to this observer....The Franklin-Pastor fight, strictly big time, will play to a full house in Cleveland Tuesday. Can't figure out how this match slipped past Jacobs.

FAIR OR FOUL
By LAWTON CARVER
INS Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—Hal Trosky, who for eight years at Cleveland held down what is sometimes called the initial sack, had hardly put the period to his announcement of retirement when up stepped Manager Lou Boudreau and declared Leslie Fleming in as Trosky's successor. Fleming thus stands among the few major leaguers ever to attain that high estate by proclamation. There is no telling yet whether he can hold it or not, but he has the job now and is regarded as a vital factor in the rebuilding of the bogged down Cleveland baseball machine.

Meantime, who is this Fleming?

If you ask that down South they probably will tell you that he is one of the greatest ball players they ever laid an eye on. The records seem to bear them out, too, with further corroboration coming tacitly from Boudreau in that he already has selected Fleming to succeed the ailing Trosky.

Native Of Texas

Fleming is a native of Houston, Tex., 26 years old, a left-hander and played at Nashville last season where in 106 games he batted .414 to lead the Southern Association and if he had not played the last day of the season he would have wound up with a new all-time record for that loop with .421. On the final day he made only one hit in eight trips, but still finished with that .414, which was just two points below the standard set in 1901.

He also drove in 103 runs and hit 29 homers to rank third in the latter department.

The Indians had him for two games last year and in his eight times up he hit .250, making two hits, including a double.

Mr. Fleming, who is married, is a big husky gent whose draft status currently is unknown to this department, but if he doesn't go away for awhile he may be what Cleveland is going to need, for you don't lose a Bob Feller and a Hal Trosky without feeling it. Feller has gone into the service since last season, while Trosky left late last season suffering from migraine headaches which have caused him to drop out until such time as he can get back into shape to play.

Fleming Can Hit

Trosky had been with the Tribe for nine seasons, or parts therof, and for eight of those years was the No. 1 man at first for them. His departure removed a major league life-time batting average of .313 and the power of a bat which once blasted out 42 home runs in a season.

When he went away late last year they called on others as a stopgap, knowing all the time that they would have to get somebody to take his place, and finally decided on Fleming, with confirmation of this coming from Boudreau himself.

How important Fleming can be in the Tribe setup is best seen by pointing out that Boudreau as the papoose manager—a 24-year-old on a wise old man's errand—will need all the breaks he can get to put the Tribe in high and keep it there. If Fleming doesn't prove to be merely a "rabbit ball" hitter out of the south and a real ball player Boudreau will offer thanks.

He has visions of stopping the Yankees this year or next.

FURNACE FIVE WINS

The Furnace Five journeyed to Sharpsville Wednesday evening and defeated the Sharpsville Eagles 59 to 47 with the versatile "Lindy" Lauro starring with 23 of the Furnace points. Sammy Ciazza also played a fine game for the winners. Best for the losers was Gogglin and Leslie.

HOUSE LEAGUE GAME

Falcons Defeat Sharon Quintet

The Polish Falcons trimmed the Sharon Eagles last night in a basketball game at the Falcon floor 51 to 44.

Eddie "Cash" Koszela was the outstandling star with 21 of the points. At the half the Falcons led 28 to 19.

Polish Falcons	Fg.	F.	Tp.

Offers To Coach Without Any Pay

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—Dr. Mal Stevens, football coach of New York University, will coach without pay if it will preserve big time football at the university, the N. Y. U. Heights Daily News revealed today.

Trustees of the university have been considering abandoning the game because of the lack of success of Violet teams since football was de-emphasized and the subsequent lack of receipts.

Unanimous Interest In Battles Tonight

New Castle Aims To Smash New Brighton — Final Barrier To Section III Toga

SECTION 20 BLAZE IS RED-HOT AGAIN

Unanimous interest is attached to tonight's five-game basketball card involving local knights of the hardwood.

New Castle high, which has hit its mid-season stride, goes all out to trample New Brighton—the last barrier separating the localites from their 11th sectional championship. The Section III soiree will be unfolded at New Brighton.

New Castle Solid

Recent performances connote that the Bridenbaughmen boast poise, balance, mobility and a scoring eye. In short, New Castle, certain of a tie in the final count, would be a worthy representative in the coming W. P. I. A. L. bounce and dribble classic.

After cooling down considerably since New Wilmington's collapse against Bessemer, the fire in Section 20 is red-hot again.

Bessemer high, which is marshal of the title parade with 10 victories against two losses, gains a sure tie for the garland by topping Shenango high on the Bessemer boards. Victory for the Capezutti-coached brigade and defeat for either New Wilmington or Wampum, tied for second place honors, will eliminate the team on the losing end.

Still smarting from the East Brook nightmare, Bessemer aims to make up for the upset by spilling Shenango. Off the showings made by Shenango, it's doubtful if the East New Castle passers can muster an attack capable of sinking the leaders.

New Wilmington, which is harboring hopes of acquiring at least a tie for the crowns, bangs away against Union township at New Wilmington. The "Greyhounds", realizing that they must win in order to keep the title torch blazing, will unleash their Sunday attack.

Jacks at Wampum

Wampum high, the other contender, dribbles against Mt. Jackson high, at Wampm. The Hennonmen currently rank as one of the hottest squads in the district. Headed by their minute man, Coy Craine, the Wampumites will flash their classiest form to emerge victorious. Craine has amassed 196 of his 325 points this season against sectional teams.

East Brook and Princeton, eliminated from the championship race some time ago, match shots at Princeton.

Tonight is an important basketball night for local teams. New Castle can put its arms from the Section III crown, while in Section 20 Bessemer is in a position to "win it or blow it".

Veterans Defeat New Castle Club

The Veteran rifle shots gathered last evening at the Cathedral range and defeated the New Castle Rifle club in a special match shoot by shooting a better off-hand score than the New Castle club when the regular match ended in a tie at 950 apiece. The veterans had an off-hand score of 227 to 220 for the New Castle club. High man in the regular match was Williams with a 196 count out of a possible 200.

The results: New Castle club—J. Moore 192, Kilbreath 191, Finley 191, W. Bowers 187, Glitch 189. Total 950. Other New Castle strings—T. Bowers 168, Gardner 185.

Old Timers—Williams 196, Houck 191, Hill 191, Eckles 187, Patterson 185. Total 950. Other Old Timers—Cramer 184, Van Horn 159, Black 160, Reynolds 170, Dean 181, McBride 176, Davis 179.

The New Castle club will have a Penn-Ohio shoot tonight at the Columbiana, O., range. The locals are to meet at the corner of Grant and Jefferson at 7 o'clock to make the trip.

FORREST CUBS WIN

The Forrest Cubs won from the Gus Big Five at the Arena floor, 26 to 14, with Ralph "PaBa" Pia the star of the game with 10 of the Cubs points. Best in the Gus Big Five lineup was George Lamorella. It was the 23rd win for the Cubs. The Cubs would like to play any Class B team. For games call 6184 and ask for Pia.

SCATTERS 'EM

Although Jimmy Vernon, Washington first-sacker, made only nine home runs during the 1941 season, he made one in each of seven American league parks. Taft Wright of the White Sox made only 10 homers, bus missed out only in Washington.

MILLERS BUY LA FATTE

MINNEAPOLIS—The Minneapolis club of the American association has purchased Joe La Fatte, 19-year-old first baseman, from Eau Claire of the Northern league.

Lawrence County Farms And Farmers

By H. R. McCulloch, County Agent

HORSES AND MULES ON THE FARM FRONT

Horses and mules can do twice as much work as they usually are expected to do, if they are well fed, properly conditioned, and the work is intelligently arranged for them.

The primary adjustment to make the most of existing horse and mule power will be to spread farm work over more weeks, more day, more hours per day, and to so feed and train the work animals as to put them in hard work, fit condition before spring work opens up, and keep them so throughout the work season.

Horses and mules fit into the present emergency in several ways: They do not require much transportation, for most of them are raised near where they are used. They require no rubber and but little iron and steel—only 48 pounds in a complete breeching harness for two work animals. Sixty-five pairs of horses or mules can be harnessed with the use of no more iron and steel than is in one average tractor. Likewise, most farm horses work without shoes, except those used on stony land, or driven on gravel or paved roads.

The breeding, feeding and general good management of work horses and mules becomes a more serious responsibility of farmers now than at any time since 1920.

ADEQUATE MILK HOUSE BECOMES DAIRY PROBLEM

In an effort to increase milk production, many farmers may be handicapped by inadequate milk house space and facilities for storage and cleaning purposes.

Before undertaking any permanent expansion of these facilities, it is naturally advisable to make sure the existing plant is taxed to the limit before spending money to make changes. Additions to present buildings should be considered first with the idea that the existing room be used as a wash room and the additions be built as a separate room for storage purposes. Plans for building concrete milk storage tanks are available in your County Extension Office, 206 Post Office building, New Castle.

If a new building is to be constructed concrete floors and tile walls are suggested because of sanitation. In placing the new building, it should be remembered that for each 3½ feet the structure is placed from the barn, it is necessary to walk one mile each year to care for the production of one cow.

Before remodeling or constructing a new milk house, consult your fieldman for any regulations issued by the dairy plant. Money, time, effort and material may be thus conserved.

IMPROVED CLOVER STRAINS AVAILABLE

Farmers who wish to make a little surer of a good crop of red clover in 1943 and who wish to get maximum yields of hay can now buy seed which has something in the way of a pedigree or record of performance behind it.

Tests at the Pennsylvania State college have proved that certain strains of both medium red and mammoth clover from Berks, Lancaster, Franklin and Indiana counties have given consistent increases in yield of hay over other local strains and still higher increases compared to average of the cream of commercial seed. Farmers interested in producing clover seed should be especially interested in sowing seed of this character which will not only generally give higher yields of both hay and seed but should be worth more when surplus seed is to be sold.

In addition to the rather limited amounts of the above strains, the United Staes Deparment of Agriculture through testing out various strains, in the mid-western states has sponsored the marketing of two blends consisting of several strains which have shown superiority. One of these blends known as Cumberland is recommended for the southern portion of the clover belt and should be resistant to the type of clover anthracnose which often causes losses in the southeastern counties.

The other blend known as Midland was prepared from strains proven suitable somewhat farther north and should be good for Pennsylvania outside the southeastern section.

FEW TOOLS NEEDED IN CUTTING LAMB CARCASS.

The lamb carcass is very easily cut up with only a sharp knife, a good saw on a clean table or bench. Be sure the carcass has been thoroughly cooled.

Split the carcass down the center of the back bone. The lamb cuts made from a split carcass are shoulder, rib, loin, leg and plate. Remove the plate by making a cut from the flank across the lower ribs to a point where shank makes an angle with the shoulder. The plate usually is boned, rolled and used for stew meat.

Separate the shoulder from the ribs between the fourth and fifth rib. Make the shoulder piece into a roll by removing neck bone, ribs, shoulder blade and arm bone. The eight or nine ribs usually are used as rib chops. However, the ribs from both halves of the carcass if used together can be made into a crown roast. Leave one rib on the loin. The loin may be used as a roast, or be sliced into chops.

Separate the leg from the loin either leaving the lamb sirloin on the leg or making a sirloin roast of lamb. The leg of lamb or mutton may be trimmed in a number of ways. The American style is to cut the hind shank at the stifle, which makes a little smaller roast but does not remove any of the roasting meat.

CHECK-UP OF BEES, SUPPLIES URGENT.

Beekeepers can now aid the war effort by helping to increase the supply of sweets which is becoming acute. More honey can be produced without the purchase of large quantities of new equipment or speculation in beekeeping.

Use the equipment now on hand to its greatest capacity. Keep all hives full of bees. Fill empty hives with package bees or make increase at a time when it will not reduce the surplus crop.

Check carefully all equipment now in stock. It should be cleaned, repaired and made ready for the honey flow. Replace defective combs with foundation and render all scraps of wax to be put on the market or to be made into foundation. Order your supplies and bees at once. Late orders may mean delays and loss of honey.

All colonies not packed should be examined on the first warm day to determine their needs, if any and steps taken to feed those that may be short of food. This requires sugar which is also needed for feeding package bees.

It is expected that beekeepers will be allowed to have sugar for feeding purposes although not quite as much as they purchased last year Information on sugar rationing to beekeepers can be obtained from the Chief of Sugar Section, War Production Board, Washington, D C.

TAKE CARE OF WOOL

Soldiers — sailors — marines—all need warm wool clothing and wool blankets. With the armed forces of the United States expanding, wool imports decreasing, there's obviously less wool for civilian purposes.

With wool fast becoming a scarce material, textile specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture have compiled the following tips to help make every yard of wool material last as long as possible.

"From Day To Day"

Keep up the appearance of a wool garment and you prolong its life.

Brush wool coats and dresses thoroughly after each wearing. It's easier to whisk off dust and lint before they get embedded in the material. Hang garments on hangers as soon as you taket them off. If you can, allow a garment to hang a few days after one or two days of wear. The "rest" lets the wool spring back in place, reduces the amount of pressing needed.

Hang wool clothing out to sun and air occasionally. Sun kills moths as well as their eggs and larvae. Since clothes moths may infest heated houses the year round it's a good idea to take precautionary measure against them in winter as well as in summer. Never leave woolen rags or discarded woolen clothing stored away on closet shelves or put away carelessly about the house.

Observe the old "stitch-in-time" rule. Tiny holes in wool garments may often be rewoven invisibly by yarns raveled out of extra material in hem or a seam. It is also possible to reweave thin places inconspicously—keep them from ever beecoming holes.

"When You Press"

Never iron wool. Steam press it. Cleaners, tailors, and a few homemakers have steam irons designed to press wool materials. With little care, you can get the same effect with an ordinary iron and two press clothes. One press cloth may be of wool material, the other of linen or firm cotton.

If you are pressing the right side of the material—here's how to get that trim look.

Spread the wool cloth over the material you are pressing. Over this spread the second press cloth. Dampen the second cloth wtih warm water. Press by setting the iron down squarely on the top press cloth, lifting it, then setting it down again. Do not lean heavily on the iron. After you've pressed over all the cloth—lift the press cloths and beat out the steam left in the wool; either with the palm of your hand or a special clapper made of sanded wood. Never press the moisture completely out of wool. If you do the material will look much pressed and lifeless. After you have pressed the garment—hang it up carefully to dry.

In some cases, you may get better results if you press on the wrong side of the wool. This is especially true if the wool tends to be shiny after pressing, or if it has an unusual patern in the weave. To press on the wrong side—lay the wool press cloth on the board first, then the material to be pressed right side down, then the cotton press cloth on the wrong side of the material. The rest of the pressing procedure is the same.

Never let the iron get hot enough to scorch the press cloth. This is a good precaution to take if the wool material has in it some threads of rayon. Some types of rayon will melt away from the wool if the iron is too hot.

"Thorough Cleaning"

Most wool garments are best dry-cleaned. However, for sweaters and other knit garments, home washing may be satisfactory.

Before you wash a knitted garment, lay it out on a clean piece of white paper or a clean old cloth. Draw an outline of the garment.

To wash, use lukewarm soft water, and lukewarm rinse waters. Be generous with the fater. Use a neutral soap, preferably in the form of a solution or a jelly. In any case, disolve the soap thoroughly before you put the knit material in the water. Squeeze and work the garment in the suds without rubbing and without putting any added soap directly on the material. Wash in a second suds and follow with two rinses—all as nearly the same temperature as possible. Squeeze out excess water each time. Do not twist or wring.

To dry—lay between 2 bath towels and pat to remove all moisture possible. Then spread the sweater or suit out on the paper or cloth on which you've drawn the outline. Pull it gently into shape and pin where necessary. If there are sleeves, spread them flat. See that the skirt is straight with the line of knitting. Turn the garment occasionally after it is almost dry.

Sometimes the knit garment needs "blocking", that is a light pressing to give it a finished appearance. Wait until it is practically dry, then cover it with a dry press cloth and a dampened one. Just touch a warm iron to the press cloth until the moisture steams through the knitted garment. Steam-press as described for other wool garments. Then take off the press cloths and leave the knit goods flat until thoroughly dry.

"Special Care"

If you get a wool garment soaked with rain or snow—hang it up to dry in a moderately warm place—not near artificial heat. Let it dry completely before you press it.

Remove any stains and spots on wool while they are still fresh. It is easier than if you leave them to catch dust and become more unsightly. Be especially careful in removing stains—for strong acids or alkalies harm the material.

It won't be long before many wool garments or household woolens should be put away until next winter. This summer you want to be doubly sure that they are safely stored away from moths.

According to the United States Department of Agriculture's Bureau of entomology and Plant Quarantine—the first thing to be sure of when you put woolens away is that you have no moths in your clothes. If you can be sure of that—it is comparatively easy to keep the moths out.

Ordinary dry cleaning will kill moths—destroy eggs and larvae. So will a washing in neutral soap. So will sun, providing it reaches all parts, and brisk brushing.

Once clothes are free of moths—you can put them away in paper bags—wrap them in paper—or put them in unbroken boxes. In every case the box, bag, or package must be wrapped so tightly or sealed so that moths cannot get in through cracks. They won't seat their way through paper. But be sure the paper covering doesn't get broken.

Just as a precaution—sprinkle some napthaline flakes in the package.

A small trunk, chest, or wooden box reasonably tight can also be used. Scatter between folds of clothing preferably between sheets of thin clean paper, one pound of napthaline or paradichlorobenzene Keep all covers closed. Under ideal conditions four ounces would be enough. But overdozing is playing safe. And the chemicals suggested are cheap.

BLACKOUT METHODS
(International News Service)

SACRAMENTO, Cal. — Various blackout methods are being recommended to California farmers by the University of California College of Agriculture. The blackout methods deal largely with the covering or painting of barn windows so that certain schedules for delivery of milk to thickly populated areas will not be disrupted.

Wide Open Fight Seen For Democrats

Three Or More Candidates Are Being Boomed For Governorship Nomination

By EVERETT GERRY
International News Service
Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, Feb. 20. — The Democratic primary contest to select a candidate for governor moved toward a wide open fight today with three or more candidates boomed for the post.

Judge Ralph H. Smith of Pittsburgh was indorsed for the nomination by U. S. Senator Joseph F. Guffey and John J. Kane, chairman of Allegheny county commissioners, at a meeting of party leaders arranged in the hope of devising a harmony program.

Guffey in a formal statement described the jurist as a widely known liberal and commended his qualities to the committee of 20 which met to consider candidates. After the group failed to give its indorsement to any one candidate, State Chairman Meredith Meyers named a sub-committee to contact the candidates and report to the main committee at headquarters February 26. Members are State Treasurer G. Harold Wagner, Paul C. Lewis, state secretary, and John F. Breslin, executive assistant to the auditor general.

Two other gubernatorial possibilities were discussed at length by the committee, Dr. Luther A. Harr, U. S. bituminous coal consumers counsel, and Auditor General F. Clair Ross. Supporters of Ross reminded the group of his ability as a vote-getter.

The report, still unconfirmed, that President Roosevelt has suggested William C. Bullitt, former ambassador to France and Russia, as the candidate, apparently had only slight repercussions in the conference chamber. Possibility of former Gov. George H. Earle as a candidate for the governorship also was discussed at the meeting.

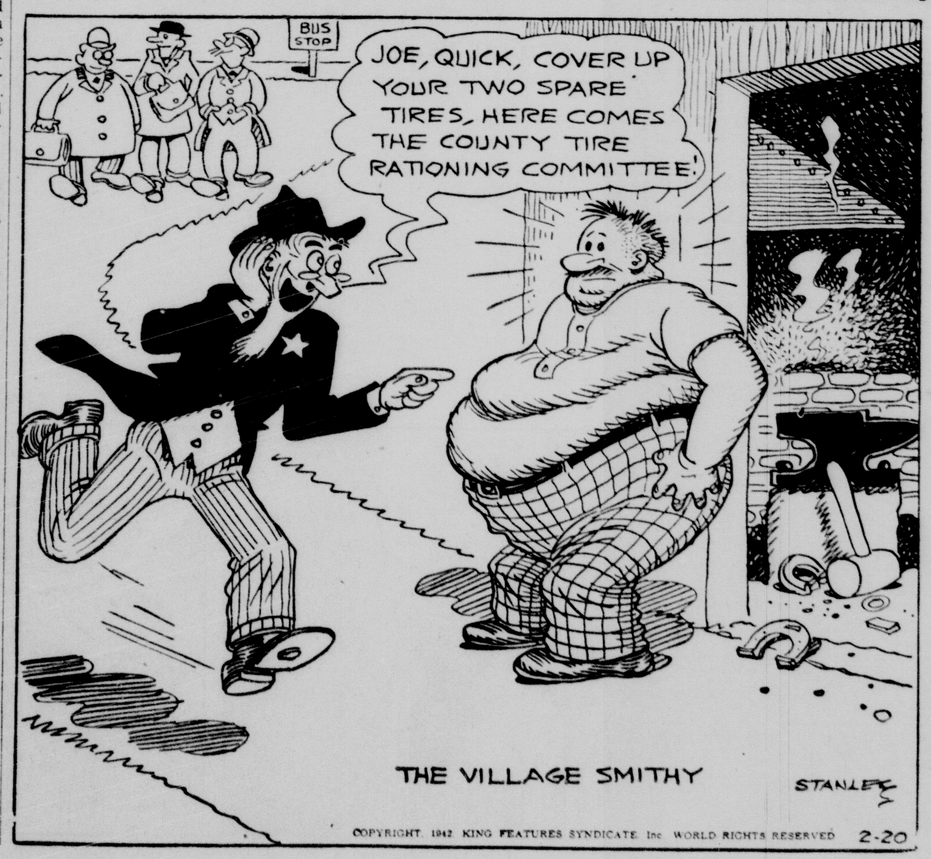

Both Guffey and Meyers professed to know nothing of Mr. Roosevelt's preference for Bullitt. Meyers has already declared for Harr for the nomination.

FROM ME TO YOU

By MESEEALL

The Defense Savings Bond Campaign in New Castle is progressing very nicely . . . after talking to the committee in charge of the campaign we have renewed our faith in New Castle and Lawrence County . . . however we didn't need this campaign to make us think that there is no place like this community. We feel very sure about the people in this section . . . they can always be depended upon when time comes for them to act. They have never let a good cause go by without their whole-hearted support. Right now we people of this County are buying defense savings stamps and bonds . . . we are going to keep right on buying until this war is won by the United States.

One day a demon ascended from hell,
Came up on earth for a breathing spell;
His Swastika flag he quickly unfurled,
And vowed with a curse he would rule the world.

"Right here" said he, "I'll take my stand,
By the aid of the devil at my right hand
I'll master the earth, the air and the seas,
I'm Adolph Hitler, if you please."

"I came on earth with a well laid plan,
To show the world I'm a superman;
My name shall be on every tongue,
I'll be feared alike by old and young."

He cursed and swore at the U. S. A.
Vowed vengence on all who came his way;
The American flag he tore from its staff
Tramped it under feet with a fiendish laugh.

"Let the Yanks boast of their Uncle Sam,
But I wonder just who they think I am;
Every army I'll crush, every ship and plane
And their Uncle Sam's loss will be my gain."

"I'll capture his islands and cities galore,
Spread death and distruction from shore to shore;
His men in the army, in the air and on sea,
Mean nothing more than ant heaps to me."

Just hold on there Hitler, take this Yank's advice,
Before going too far, you had better think twice;
We may look like ant heaps to a demon like you,
But we'll change your mind before we are through.

We'll avenge our dead hero's and crush you like dust,
We are out for your scalp, we'll lick you or bust;
Over this land of ours you shall never hold sway
So beware of the Yanks and the old U. S. A.

—MRS. A. T. K.

Recovery Efforts In Day's Trading Are Stalled—Changes Are Small

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—Recovery efforts in the stock market were stalled today as the main body of issues drifted irregularly lower toward the four-year bottoms reached Wednesday morning.

Chemicals again were under pressure, Du Pont and Allied each losing about a point to new lows. Socony-Vacuum, Philip Morris and General Foods were others to reach new bottoms.

Standard Oil of N. J. extended its substantial decline of recent sessions with an extreme loss of a point.

U. S. Steel was steady, but most others in the group, including Bethlehem slipped behind minus signs. Electrical equipments also eased. Coppers were mixed.

Motors, aviations, utilities and rails were steady to a shade higher.

BETSY ROSSES MAKE STARS AND STRIPES BY MACHINE

The stars go here

Stars go on a field of blue

The flag industry is booming, and nowhere is it booming more than at the army quartermaster depot in Philadelphia where are manufactured all the flags, standards, guidons and battle streamers that fly with our army around the world. The job of making a flag is not the tedious, hand-work task that it was for Betsy Ross. Now machinery does at least part of the work, although some steps are still done by hand, such as the sewing of the stars on the blue field, lower right. At the rate the flags are being turned out from the depot, the United States army won't be without the Stars and Stripes, symbol of what it's fighting for, no matter where it goes.

A Hero Gets a Sailor's Burial

News of the Day Newsreel

The body of George H. Smith slides from the flag-draped coffin into the waters of the Pacific. A marine honor guard fires the last salute and the chaplain speaks the last words in the service for the only American sailor killed in the brilliant navy raid on the Marshall and Gilbert Islands. Seaman Smith was killed by a bomb fragment as Jap airmen vainly tried to beat off the Yankee attackers.
